REMEMBERING CANADIAN PIONEERS-Something different in the way of cairns is this one at Yorkton, Sask, erected in memory of early pioneers of the district. Embedded among the native rocks are around 30 Indian stone hammers, said to have been used by plains Indians in making pemmican, a mixture of dried buffalo meat, rat and berries. The inscription on the cairn is framed with colorful stone arrowpoints and reads: "In memory of those men and women who, in the early eighties of the nineteenth century, endured the privations of pioneer life and founded homes hereabout."
