FISH HEARD IN PICTURE

Scientific Wonder Film
Intrigues 500 Persons at Armory

Roomy though the Armouries building on Sixth Avenue is, there was not a vacant seat at the screening Thursday night of "The Voice of the Deep"—the first underwater sound film ever made. There were 500 there. It was originated by the Moody Bible Institute and is an attraction of mystery and beauty, as well as wonder. The showing lasted over an hour.

Later this month it will be displayed through central British Columbia. Yesterday there were also large audiences at Port Edward.

The gathering last night was presided over by Cecil Carter, missionary, assisted by Manville A. Bedford.

The former outlined what had been accomplished in the way of scientific research to make a film such as would be shown, possible.

There were scenes on the surface of the sea, as well as far in the depths, with all in natural color. It was clearly demonstrated how fish do make a variety of sounds. This, of course, cannot be heard by the human ear but it certainly is self-evident when greatly magnified through the agency of science, fish can not only be seen, but heard.

Present, throughout the evening, were officers of the missionary vessel Willis Shank from Seattle, a former minesweeper of the United States Navy, and named in memory of a flier, who had perished while on duty. Among those who spoke were Captain Stabbert, Dr. L. E. McCleeny, chief engineer Walter Kallestrom, assistant chief engineer Fred Hartung and Harold Peters of Victoria, representing the Shantymen's Christian Association of North America. The program was enlivened with instrumental solos by Stanley and Norman Henderson, who played trumpet and saxophone. They are heading for Ketchikan to engage in missionary work.

Dr. David L. Cowie of University Presbyterian Church of Seattle, spoke and sang.

Mr. Carter expressed appreciation for co-operation and assistance in arranging for the screening, to Col. S. D. Johnston, Dick Saunders, Rev. Fred Antrobus, G.R.S. Blackaby, Commander N. A. Beketov, C. H. Insulander, Daily News and others.
