IT WAS NO PICNIC FOR 'MR. ZERO"-The league-leading Deroit Red Wings went on their wildest scoring spree of the National Hockey League season when they whipped the secondplace Boston Bruins 10-2, in a recent encounter played at Detroit. It was a goal feast for the Wings off Goalie Frank Brmisek, Boston's veteran "Mr. Zero" (above), who turned back only 24 of the 34 shots fired at him while yielding 10 markers. It was the worst rout the lads from Bean Town have suffered all year.

'MR. HANDS" - Ted Strong. guard and playing coach of the Harlem Globetrotters, who will be here with the championship professional team on January 24-25. Six feet, three inches tall and weighing 215 pounds, Strong can handle basketball like the average person handles an orangehis hands have a 12-inch span, said to be the largest in the game. What he can do with a basketball on a court is unbelievable. In addition to his hoop prowess, he is one of the best hitters in Negro baseball. in which he plays right field in midwest pro leagues. TORONTO The death of

LONGBOAT DEATH

Tom Longboat, Canada's famous long-distance runner of almost a half-century ago brings many memories to sportswriters.

Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller relays this story about the lanky Indian marathoner from Hamilton's well-known runner, Bobby Kerr.

It was in Buffalo in the 17th Regiment Armory, back in 1909, I believe. Longboat, a marathoner, willingly agreed to run a three-mile race against George Bonhag, one of the greatest all-American middle-distance men. On the one side was Bonhag, trained to a fine finish and run-

Bob Woods and George Brown, "However, the two started, and popular sponsors of Brownwoods, for every inch of the three miles are hosts tonight to their team they ran stride for stride. As at a get-together and it might be they neared the finish, eyes just the time to do their part and bulging, Bonhog tried in vain to have a victory to talk over in edge in front.
