November 14th to 20th "EDUCATION WEEK"

OPEN HOUSE AT CONRAD STREET

Under sponsorship of its Parent-Teacher Association, Conrad Street School held "open house" Wednesday afternoon and was host to more than 100 mothers, who enjoyed a special program, refreshments and a view of the classrooms.

The event was arranged in connection with Education Week and both P.T.A. members and children assisted in making it a pleasant one. The guests were received at the door by three Grade Five students, Molly Simmonds, Drue Patrick and Nina Mostad. Geraldine Moorehouse was in charge of the visitors' register.

Visits to the various classrooms followed and the mothers were invited by the teachers to inspect their children's handiwork.

Refreshments were served in the basement, with Mrs. M. F. Stuart and Mrs. C. Johansen convening. Serviteurs were Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. L. Colussi, Mrs. E. Petersen, Mrs. F. Jensen and Mrs. R. Ferguson. Mrs. W. Davidson acted as cashier, and contributions to further P.T.A. work totalled $26.

A group of Grade Five students, who are also Junior Red Cross members, presented a play, "Twins' Birthday" inspired by the recent Royal birth.

PERSISTENT STREAM

TORONTO. (P)—A stream, formerly running through Toronto, was put into underground sewers in 1902 to make way for the University of Toronto library. But occasionally it rises, flooding the library basement and forcing librarians to flee upstairs with valuable reference books.

Costs Much Less to Build than a High School

Therefore it was suggested that one unit of the new high school and a new elementary school to replace King Edward would be built.

Many vital questions were answered as Mr. Brown continued. Why had nothing been done about this plan? A great deal had been done. In a building program there are many steps. Right now a rough draft for King Edward School had been accepted by the Board. This draft and one for Booth School were shown at the meeting.

The new elementary school would cost approximately $250,000. Unit one of High School, would cost approximately $400,000. Total estimated cost was $650,000. Provincial government paid one half or $325,000. The city of Prince Rupert's share would be approximately 80 per cent. Outside school's share would be the remaining 20 per cent. The plan submitted to ratepayers could, therefore, be for about $325,000 or $350,000. It was hoped to submit this to the ratepayers next spring.

The High School would be built on its present site, with all the space within the circle plus six lots on Sixth Avenue obtained by the school board from the War Assets. The elementary school would be situated on its present site along Green Street.

The condition of the present building was terrible said Mr. Brown. A new school was essential. The building leaked, the furnace room became swamped during heavy rains. There was not enough room to hold the growing population.

After Mr. Brown's outline of the building program those present discussed their ideas on the subject and enjoyed coffee and refreshments served by Mrs. K. Knutsen and other ladies.

Education. Mr. Chell commented on the order in which the aims were stated, an order which he said would surprise the uninformed. Modern education also recognized that each child required individual attention. This could only be done by having smaller classes. At the conclusion Mr. Chell discussed questions asked by members of the audience.

An enthusiastic vote of thanks to both speakers was heartily endorsed by the members.

Mrs. H. C. Flood presided over the business meeting with Mrs. Linney as secretary.

Following adjournment refreshments were served and an opportunity given all to become better acquainted.

BORDEN ST. P.T. MEETING

Interesting Addresses by Mrs. F. Wright and Joseph Chell

The regular meeting of the Borden Street Parent-Teacher Association last evening was highlighted by two addresses—one by Mrs. F. Wright on the recent Discussion Group Course given at the Civic Centre under the auspices of the University Extension Department of British Columbia and the other by Inspector of Schools Joseph Chell.

Mrs. Wright spoke of the methods adopted by the instructor and then the requisites for conducting a successful discussion. Practical experience had been given those attending and the summing up of the results of the course supplemented by a cartoon film had been most helpful.

Speaking on the large subject of the aims and objectives of education, Mr. Chell prefaced his remarks by paying tribute to the value of the work of the Parent Teacher movement. With regard to the aims and objectives, the speaker suggested that these varied with the period under discussion, the place and the people concerned. Objectives of the present generation are different from those of past generations. Objectives in the future will change too. "Any state that education becomes static it will die" the speaker commented.

Broadly speaking, education hopes to give the child an awareness of what life requires, how the demand may be met and of his own responsibility in the community and to it, Mr. Chell said. How this objective might be met was discussed by referring to the course of study as issued by the Department of

EDUCATION VIEWPOINTS

Booth Parent-Teachers' Association Hears Speakers

Five different viewpoints on Prince Rupert's education problems were lucidly presented last night to a meeting of the Booth Memorial High School Parent-Teachers' Association, covering opinions of representatives of the School Board, teaching profession, parents and students.

The series of discussions was a special feature held in connection with Education Week and followed a brief business meeting attended by almost 100 P.T.A. members.

Dr. R. G. Large, chairman of the Prince Rupert District School Board, outlined the problems which have faced the board in connection with construction of new schools and the progress which has been made toward that end.

Considerable study, he said, went into the board's decision to construct a new school on the King Edward site and to plan construction of one unit of a new high school to supplement and to eventually replace the present Booth Memorial structure.

Development of plans for the new buildings has been a time-consuming operation, Dr. Large declared, and the initial work is not yet completed. It probably will not be until next year that a bylaw to raise the money for new construction will be presented to the people.

Dr. Large presented sketch drawings of the proposed new King Edward School and the new Booth unit to his audience.

Shortcomings in the present Booth High School building were stressed by Vice-Principal R. D. Cleland who told the gathering that what would have seemed frills in education a generation ago are normal requirements today. "Horse-and-buggy" education are out of place in the atomic age, he said.

An appeal for the best in both methods and facilities was made by Mrs. George Hill, who addressed the gathering as a parent.

G. R. S. Blackaby warned against what he termed a growing tendency toward specialization in educational methods, pointing out that the purpose of education was the development of a complete, well-rounded personality.

The students' viewpoint was

Education. Mr. Chell commented on the order in which the aims were stated, an order which he said would surprise the uninformed. STUDENTS' VIEWPOINT

The students' viewpoint was presented by Miss Laila Husoy, secretary of the Booth Memorial High School Students' Council. She pointed out the inadequacy of the present school building by stressing the lack of student government facilities, notably an office for the student council.

At the business meeting which preceded the addresses a resolution was passed supporting one already approved by King Edward P.T.A. which urged that the provincial government drop the three per cent sales tax from school books and equipment.

Mrs. Earl Becker, membership chairman, reported that membership in the organization is now about 40. A report on finances was given by Mrs. George Hill and on P.T.A. literature by Mrs. C. J. O. Olson. Rev. Basil S. Prockter, president, was chairman.

The meeting concluded with refreshments, served in the home economics room.
