SHORT SPORT

Mary Lynch, 20-year-old London modiste, loved horses ever since she was a child. She gave up her job to work at Pulestone Farm racing stable in Shropshire. Two hours after she started work she was found lying in a road, apparently trampled by one of the animals she loved. She died in hospital. A neighbor who had watched Mary grow up sent to her funeral a wreath—in the shape of a horseshoe.

Who was the greatest rugby player of all time? W. J. Townsend Collins, veteran writer on the game, summed the question up in his recent book, "Rugby Recollections," and decided the laurel went to the late Arthur Gould. Gould, nicknamed "the incomparable," was in first-class rugby from 1882 to 1898, playing for Newport and Wales and later for Richmond and Middlesex, in their greatest years. Admirers on five continents contributed £1,000 (then about $5,000) to endow a bed in Newport hospital as a memorial to the star.

On the living-room door of 16-year-old Christine Wheeler's home in London is a mark five feet, six inches above the floor, topped by the slogan, "It's Easy." Every day when she comes home from school, Christine, British junior high-jump champion at four feet, 11 inches, looks at the mark and tells herself, "I'll jump it someday." She set the junior mark using the scissors jump and hopes that when she masters the western roll, under the instruction of coach A. A. Gold, she'll be able to top the British women's record of five feet, 5 3/8 inches. Gold is a great believer in the "ambition mark" on the door. "It gets the jumper used to the idea of the height aimed at," he explained, "and that gives confidence. Given technique, strength and training, jumping becomes a matter of confidence."

EDMONTON MOVES UP

EDMONTON, (C)—Edmonton Flyers crushed Winnipeg Flyers 111 to 0 last night to gain a three games to one lead in the Western Canadian senior hockey finals while in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup final Ottawa Senators defeated the Hamilton Tigers two to one to even up that series.

Each of the final series are to be the best of seven games. The fifth western game will be played in Edmonton Saturday night.

The Ottawa-Hamilton series now stands at one win each.

of the British Football Association Cup earlier this season? Supporters said he accomplished the feat by a series of "master plans," by which he foiled the professional opposition. Ted now is working on a new master plan which he'll try out against Arsenal—regarded as a certainty to win the League championship—in an exhibition game at Highbury April 27. If Colchester can put up a good show in this match it will greatly strengthen the team's hand in bidding for inclusion in the League's Third Division next season.

Ocean Falls Smothered

Local Basketball All-Stars Win 83 to 31 Victory

On the way to Port Alberni to engage in a provincial championship series, Prince Rupert's all-star basketball team paused long enough at Ocean Falls on Tuesday night to administer a resounding 83 to 31 drubbing upon a selected paper town team.

The warm-up provided a field night for galloping Jack Lindsay who topped the scoring list with 22 points although Joe Davis was well up with 16. Every member of the local team with the exception of Mel Holkestad got in on the scoring.

The paper town boys looked in the first quarter like making a fight of it and scored 12 points to Rupert's 16. However, Alex Bill's crew by that time got their bearings adjusted and smothered their hosts from then on. Half time count was 39 to 16 and three-quarters, 60 to 20.

The two-night stand at Port Alberni opens this evening.

Scoring at Ocean Falls was as follows:

Prince Rupert—MacPhee 11, R. Holkestad 13, Lindsay 22, Beynon 10, Forman 2, Dominato 5, Morgan 4, M. Holkestad, Davis 16. Total, 83.

Ocean Falls—Simpson 99, Corbin, Williams 8, Robertson, Lear 2, Brown, Patterson 2, Oxenbury 4, Walsh, Morris 6. Total 31.

Engineer's Hunch Wins Big Fortune

DURBAN, South Africa (C)—Because his wife's name was Sheila, Pat Daley, an engineer aboard a British ship in Durban, won £20,000 ($100,000). He put £400 on Sheila's Cottage, which won the Grand National at his home town of Liverpool at 50 to 1. "With the ship hanging about in port under repair, I had a hankering after a bet on the National, with Sheila's Cottage as my choice," he said. "I sent off a cable to my brother in Liverpool to make a £400 bet for me. He refused to lay the bet, but I was determined to go through with it and cabled again demanding that he should lay it. I was right. It was the biggest gamble I have ever taken, and I will never take another."
