The Soviet Reversal

TO UNDERSTAND the reasons and the implications of the astonishing reversal of Soviet policy in Germany one need only look at the facts. Why has the Soviet government decided that there must not, at any rate for the present, be a "democratic all-German government" but only a non-elected "German state council" dealing with "economic and administrative questions" under the "supreme power" of a revived Four Power Control Council?

The first reason is, of course, clearly political. The shock of the recent Soviet zone elections have shown Stalin and his colleagues that a democratic united Germany could not be easily converted into Communist-dominated Germany allying itself politically and economically with the Soviet Union and disassociating itself with Europe. Rather, it was indicated that a united Germany with any freedom of choice would choose association with western Europe and not with the Soviet Union and its satellites. So Moscow now favors a cotinuance of partition so that the Soviet Union can at any rate still maintain control of the Eastern zone.

Meantime, the Soviet has not been having much economic success in Eastern Germany but, to the contrary, intense economic crisis has developed. The Soviet Union, for all its boasting of economic strength, is in no condition to help eastern Germany or any of its satellites. Even the Chinese Communists are finding that Russia is in no position to help them and, like the Soviet satellite nations of Europe, may have to rebuild economic connections with the west or run the risk of collapse.

That is true also of Eastern Germany. Four years of Soviet administration and exploitation brought the zone to a condition in which it too needs not only trade with the West but help from the West. The relaxation of the two mark currencies is only one symptom of the situation. And it is notable that in Berlin the Soviet negotiations have proposed a currency agreement which would mean in effect the giving of very large West mark credits to the Soviet zone.

The Vishinsky proposal follows logically. Ther e must be a German body representing the "economic organs" of the East and the West. The sentiment of national solidarity in such a body might mean that, through it, the West would provide economic assistance for the East. And it must be under quadripartite control so that the Soviet military governor can impose his veto if the "German Council" shows signs of any independence or of any desire to "interfere" in the economy of the Eastern zone.

In short, the change of the Soviet "line" is the direct result of the failure of both its political and economic policies in Eastern Germany and in Eastern Europe as a whole. That is its real significance.

CONGRATULATIONS, DR. DAGGETT

\V/E SHOULD congratulate Harry Mark Daggett, jr., who has just won his doctor of philosophy degree, on his fine and so long consistent scholastic attainments which, in comparative youth, have reached this culminating point. His achievements reflect credit not only upon his esteemed pioneer parents but also on this his home community and, to some degree as well, the elementary and High Schools of the city of whose utilities he availed himself as long as possible. Dr. Daggett has proven himself one of Prince Rupert's most distinguished students and the felicitations of ourselves and all his old home town friends are richly deserved. It is a matter of satisfaction to all.

Mrs. Emily Bolton, dead in the Naas Valley where she spent all of her ninety years, could have told a tale. Few indeed survive who, in mind's eye, can see the north and as life looked, ninety years ago. The burden of great age was heavy but it could not have so greatly clouded memory. Thirty years ago on June 14, John Alcock and Arthur Brown, for the first time in history, flew the Atlantic Ocean. They took off from St. Johns, Newfoundland, and sixteen hours later made a crash landing in a bog, at Clifden in County Galway, twin-engine covered bomber, and their prize $40,000 offered by Lord Northcliffe. All three, since then, have died. The Atlantic was not flown again until 1927, when the feat was performed by Charles Lindbergh
