Ray Reflects . . . . . . and Reminisces

Many Prince Rupert people have never been further than Terrace along the Skeena. It's a scenic, historic, productive land. About everywhere looms a picture gallery as the river idens through the wilds, but the wilderness today is less pronounced. There is not the solitude of earlier times. Railroad and highway, tourists and travel see to this.

here for anyone who knows what he wants to do, is not afraid of work, and is not too impatient. An up and coming town is Terrace!

Terrace has achieved "the new look." Terrace, today, is different. New faces, new enterprises, new ideas and ambitions do not have to be sought, because there are so many of them. There is opportunity

The name "Holy City" is much easier to pronounce than Meamskinisht. This early missionary village, with its church and dwellings behind the trees can be sighted from across the Skeena. Its colorful history goes a long way back and none of it can be charged with dullness. The overshadowing peaks of the Seven Sisters fill the background. They draw one—as all sisters do.
