Courtesies were exchanged between city council and the Public Relations Council in the best tradition last night. Public Relations Council wrote letter thanking the city for its efforts to make the lots in front of the museum and Health Unit buildings presentable by cutting grass there last fall. City Council returned the compliment by agreeing with Alderman Casey that the city should make permanent provision for maintaining the property in presentable condition. The land and buildings are owned by the provincial government, but, since they are occupied by city institutions, it holds that the city is responsible for upkeep.
