Predicts Weather Year In Advance

CAPETOWN @ — A Riebeck West man claims that, by making a careful study of the first 12 days of the year, he can forecast the weather for the rest of the year.

The amateur meteorologist is Jan Truter. He has spent most of his life in the open and this, he says, helps him in his forecasting. He says the weather so far this year has been exactly as he predicted in January.

Truter bases his weather calculations on the various wind directions. To be exact in the predictions, he says, one should sleep outside during the first 12 days of the year.

The way certain stars shine also assists him in his forecasting.

SCHOOL LUNCHES

It's time to start planning those school lunches again. And of course mothers know it takes plenty of imagination to concoct daily lunches that are nutritious, tasty and lovely to look at.

May we suggest that you set aside a corner of the kitchen for all those necessary lunch-box trappings—a sharp slicing knife, waxed paper cups with covers, waxed paper and paper napkins. In the long run this will save a lot of time and energy.

Two sandwiches with a variety of fillings and bread are the mainstay of any lunch box. Egg salad with pimento makes an appetizing sandwich filling. Chopped roast meat with pickle and mayonnaise is another. Peanut butter and salad dressing also is an interesting combination.

An uncooked vegetable should be included, whether it be a few crisp celery curls, carrot sticks or a tomato.

The youngsters will always welcome a banana or an apple with perhaps a piece of gingerbread or a cookie for dessert.

Either hot or cold drinks may be carried in a vacuum bottle. If the beverage is hot rinse the bottle with hot water before filling; if cold, rinse with cold water first.

GINGER SNAPS

Ginger snaps make a welcome addition to any lunch box.

Ingredients: One cup molasses; one-half cup shortening; two teaspoons baking soda; two tablespoons warm milk; 2½ cups all-purpose flour; one tablespoon ginger; one teaspoon salt.

Heat molasses to the boiling point and add shortening. Dissolve soda in the milk and add to the molasses mixture. Sift ginger and salt with flour and mix well with other ingredients. Form into rolls and wrap in waxed paper. Chill overnight. Slice and bake on greased cookie sheets. Yield: about 75 cookies.

BALANCED MEALS

The health department reminds every homemaker that when planning meals be sure to include foods from every group in Canada's food rules. These groups: milk, fruits, vegetables, cereals, bread and meat.

It also notes that cheese should play an important part in everyone's diet. Cheese is a good source of calcium, protein, vitamin A and riboflavin. It should be included in the diet at least three times a week by itself or in a combination with other foods.
