Highway Was Never Worse

Morris Dahlquist, well known timber operator of Cedarvale, does not agree with those who say the Skeena River Highway is in good shape. In fact, he most emphatically disagrees and told the Daily News when here at the first of the week on a brief business visit that the road was never in worse shape since it was built. "It's full of chuck holes all the way from Cedarvale to Prince Rupert," he declared. It took him three hours and forty-five minutes to drive in from Terrace—an hour and a quarter longer than it usually takes.

Rev. Forbes Shultz arrived from Ocean Falls today on the Prince George.

Blackwood On Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

Here is a point about the mathematics of bridge you will want to remember for your profit. Consider the situation when you are not vulnerable, your opponents are, and they bid a game which appears makeable.

If they do make it they will enter 700 points on their score for the rubber bonus, the surface it would seem that a sacrifice bid which went down plus 100 or so trick points. On three tricks or 500 points would be quite justified.

That is a delusion. Remember that mathematically your opponents scored half of the rubber bonus when they made their first game. True, these were "hidden" points, not entered on the score—but earned nevertheless.

This means that when the opponents made their second game they are scoring merely the other half of the rubber bonus or 350 points, plus trick score of about 100. This total of about 450 points is all you are actually "sacrificing against."

To put it another way, if you take a set of 500 points, your opponents will enter that goodly sum in their score and you will STILL not be vulnerable, against vulnerable opponents and with only one chance in three of winning the rubber.

It is a good proposition to go set 300 points when you feel sure your vulnerable opponents will make game. It is a losing proposition to go set 500 points or more. These figures hold

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Applewhite arrived in the city today from Ocean Falls on the Prince George. They had stopped there on their way up coast from Vancouver, following Mr. Applewhite's return from Ottawa where he attended the recent session of Parliament.

In today's deal should Mr. Dale sacrifice at five clubs? Against reasonable defense the bid would have been down three.

Here is a good answer. If all the players were of about equal skill, I would favor a pass.

If the players were of unequal skill and Mr. Dale's partner were the weakest player, he should pass promptly.

But if Mr. Dale had a strong partner against weak opponents, he should bid five clubs and be sure of having this same partner for a few more hands.

So, playing with Mr. Abel against that sterling team of Masters and Champion, Mr. Dale easily reached the right decision. He passed.
