U.S. and Imports

IT IS SIMPLE LOGIC that the United States will have to become more "import-minded," if she is to participate effectively in international rehabilitation and preserve peace and happiness abroad in these changing times when no nation, no matter how great, can live unto itself alone.

It is becoming increasingly apparent and realistically admitted too that the nations abroad have only one means of ensuring their stability and that is by disposal of the goods they produce and building up of their credits.

Insistence upon the gold and dollar standards which, in themselves, are to considerable extent founded on artificial and arbitrary bases, may not much longer be maintained.

It is a healthy sign to see Secretary of State Dean Acheson, cold realist in regard to international affairs, making the statement yesterday that it was essential that United States become more "import-minded" in the world in which she has a corner on the standard money and the credit.

POPPY DAY

ONCE AGAIN this year The Canadian Legion is asking the people of Prince Rupert to wear a poppy for remembrance. This is an excellent appeal, and one that should not be overlooked. During the years since Col. John McCrae wrote the challenging poem "In Flanders Fields" the poppy has taken on a peculiar significance. It has come to typify in many countries of the world the debt which we who live owe to those who died in battle.

One day in the year the people of Canada are asked to wear a poppy to show that they remember. One day in the year they are asked to pause briefly to honor the dead. That is little enough. While remembrance of the dead of the two wars is the spiritual aspect of the poppy, there is the other practical purpose of assisting the living, for the money raised through the fund is used for emergency assistance to veterans.

While it is true that veterans under certain circumstances have the advantage of specific legislation, such as war veterans' allowance, it should be remembered that when an emergency crops up speed is the essential requirement in providing assistance.

There are many cases on record with the Poppy Fund where the necessary assistance has been forthcoming in a matter of hours. It should be remembered also that there are many worthy veterans who hesitate to apply to any of the organized charities. Many of them have twice gone into uniform, and have given ten years from their productive life to the service of their country. Through the comradeship of the Canadian Legion their needs are learned, and the assistance is forthcoming. It should be remembered too, that while the Poppy Fund is a national appeal the money raised locally is used locally to assist veterans regardless of their being members of the Canadian Legion or not.

The Legion slogan "Wear a Poppy for Remembrance" is a good slogan. It is one that deserves the support of every citizen. Live up to it.—Tomorrow!

DEATH IN THE AIR

FLYING involves risk, and for that matter so does any other form of travel, if it's only walking.

Aviation disasters occur now and then, and all too frequently result in the destruction of every soul on board. We hear all about crashes and collisions but nothing whatever concerning the millions who fly safely.

Aviation, of course, has come to stay, and the world would not have it otherwise. There is no use lamenting an air calamity.

It is vain though human to deplore the fate of loved ones. Indeed, one might be warranted in concluding that, with life's end just ahead, it was best to perish with such suddenness that actual transition was perhaps not realized.

HEALTH UNIT BUSY DURING LAST MONTH

Prince Rupert Health Unit's nursing and sanitary staff experienced one of its busiest months in October due to an outbreak of measles and failure of the city water main.

Monthly report for October, issued by the senior public health nurse, Miss Freda Hilton, stated that, due to the measles outbreak, which kept the nursing staff busy, some of the routine work had to be left until later.

However, the report stated, a start has been made on school examinations and the turn-out at the well baby clinics has been good. Visits also were made to tuberculosis patients and contacts to make appointments for the chest clinic.

There were 482 cases of measles and 17 cases of mumps during the month.

The immunization program resulted in 106 persons being treated for pertussis, diphtheria and tetanus. Similar clinics, home visits and clinics are being carried out at interior points.

Pressure of water within the city, which was added to greatly by the necessity of keeping a watchful eye on the purity of the water supply during the break in the Woodworth-Shawatians main, prevented Sanitarian A. G. Boas from making his usual visit to the interior. However, word was received from the Department of Health that a permanent site for a garbage dump had been approved at Terrace.

Miss P. Yabolnitsky, nursing supervisor for the central and northern B.C. district, visited the city and will continue to visit Prince Rupert four times annually. The coast travelling clinic was in the city during the first week in October and, during the later part of the month, a child guidance clinic was at the Health Unit for two days. The team consisted of a psychiatrist, a psychologist, a clinic supervisor and a public health nurse. It was the first time in three years that the clinic has visited Prince Rupert. Future visits are planned at six-month intervals.

Women of Moose Plan Activities

Women of the Moose, at their regular meeting in the Moose Temple, with Mrs. Harold Muncey, senior regent, in the chair, gave permission to the child care committee to hold a rummage sale in December. Plans were made to have a raffle of a turkey, ham and chicken, proceeds to be used for the Moose children's Christmas Tree.

Ray Reflects . . . . . . and Reminisces

Premier Attlee urges British employers and workers to "work longer hours, save more and spend less." It might almost be said that in Canada in recent years the general tendency has been exactly the reverse. Mr. Attlee can succeed in making himself unpopular, but, when he feels he must say something that rewards him with the Bronx cheer, he does not hesitate to go ahead and say it.

Removal of rental control is another of those little matters one can select in the event of ever being puzzled to know what to worry over.

If the people of Canada fail to become fully enlightened on how life goes in the Royal Canadian Navy, it will not be the fault of Parliament and press. A voluminous report has been tabled. It contains plenty of recommendations. Generally speaking, it looks like shake-ups, both ashore and afloat.

A copy of The Journal, Prince Rupert's first and only daily morning newspaper, was read yesterday. The date was in April, 1913. It printed a front page notice that Earl Grey's Rifles would proceed to the Government wharf to hold drill. The order was from Fred Stork, captain, and signed by S. P. McMorris, lieutenant. The owner and editor of The Journal was O. H. Nelson from Victoria, and the office stood on Third Avenue, just below McBride Street. Mr. Nelson and family lived up stairs on the second floor.

Veterans' Honors For Geo. Bradbury

Funeral services this morning from the chapel of B. C. Undertakers for the late George Bradbury, well known city pioneer and veteran of World War I, were marked by Canadian Legion honors for ex-service men. Rev. Fred Antrobus of First Baptist Church officiated and pallbearers were W. E. Denning, Fred Barber, N. L. Jones and William Williams. Bugler W. J. Rance sounded "The Last Post" as the remains were lowered in the veterans' plot.
