

Miniscences and Reflections

It would be no part of me to be ashamed of attending the Council meeting. Who really said something need not be a Prince Rupert. It is easy on the eyes.

History repeats! When Prince Rupert is busy, so is the police court. July recorded a figure that reached into the thousands. When pockets are empty and hands idle, watch out for a silent courtroom. In the old railway building days, rigid righteousness and prosperity were miles apart. It seems to be getting that way again.

The dwelling at the corner of Second and Seventh which sustained damage in Friday night's dynamite blast was built about forty years ago. It was one of the oldest here. The original owner was the late Tom Dunn, member of Vancouver's first city council, a pioneer business man of that city and in the hardware line here in the very early days.

A good way to start the week! Keep your shirt on. Don't become sore. Blood pressure can jump 60 points after an outburst of anger. Lay off jumping!

It is only to be expected that, with so many visitors in Prince Rupert, for the first time, as it is this summer, all feel it a duty to confess to a feeling of mild surprise—if not astonishment. For, there is a reason. After having been labelled for half a lifetime—say 35 years—this city logically enough would they saw something spouting. It was not a political speech either. Anyway, they shot it. Fact is, both had a whale of a time.

The wailing sirens and whistles of steamers, weatherbeaten fishing craft arriving and sailing, the unloading and sale of fish that had been swimming but recently, the docks, the yachts and white wings of tireless gulls, the sight of naval uniforms, the swinging ashore of heavy freight, the coming or going of passengers—all this is old stuff to Prince Rupert but that is no reason at all why it is not vastly interesting to those who perhaps rarely visit a port. There will be many here this week, who but infrequently see the men who do business on great waters and the tools of their trade.

Thomas McKerecher, of Alberta, a delegate to the recent Liberal convention in Ottawa, told reporters that for 71 years he had been a Liberal through and through and that he certainly believed in the two old parties. Thousands share his opinion. But just for the sake of argument, how does Mr. McKerecher feel about Social Credit—which cannot look back very far, as a political organization?

Prince Rupert's first and only morning paper, The Journal, referred to in the Daily News a few days ago, published on Third Avenue, just east of McBride Street, in one of the first buildings ever erected in that neighborhood. The site was near ground now occupied by a laundry. The times were stirring. Street grading, heavy blasting, real estate selling, electioneering, retaining wall construction and daily rainfalls were all going strong. To carry along a newspaper, or any kind of business, required faith, forbearance and patience, to say nothing of mental and physical agility. And the less dignity, the better.

Canada entered the war with six destroyers—the Skeena, the Ottawa, the Fraser, the Saguenay, the Restigouche and the St. Laurent. Thousands of tons, unable to pronounce St. Laurent, compromised on "Sally Rand," which wasn't so bad, after all. But in "Restigouche," the gallant craft offered nothing but headaches. There could not have been a bluenose in the crew, else there would have been no problem. So, un-

"I don't care if you can't cook, darling—so long as you can open packages of Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes!"

"Oh George—you're wonderful! I'll just open a package of malty, rich, honey-golden Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes, and quick-like breakfast will be ready!"

"Um-m-m—that one-and-only, out-of-this-world Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes flavor!"

"And good nourishment, too, don't forget."

"Yep, Hon—they're jam-packed with carbohydrates, minerals and other food essentials that sure will make your husband a husky guy!"

"And of course I was only kidding about not being able to cook. I can make scrumptious cookies, cakes and other good things from those tested recipes on the Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes packages."

"How about picking up some crisp, crunchy Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes on our way down to get the marriage license?"
