When Song is Sweet," accompanied by Mrs. E. J. Smith at the organ.

Following the marriage ceremony a reception was held in the Oddfellows' Hall. Guests were received by the bride's mother, lovely in a gown of grey silk figured in red with grey accessories and corsage of red carnations, and the groom's mother, Mrs. G. H. Tycho of Smithers, wore brown accessories and corsage of yellow carnations.

The bridal couple received the congratulations of their many friends as they stood beneath a white wedding bell in an arch of pink and white, on either side of which stood baskets of spring flowers.

J. S. Irvine proposed the toast to the bride which was suitably responded to by the groom. Jack Frew proposed the toast to the matron of honor to which the groomsman responded. Dainty refreshments were served from two tables at each end of the hall. The tables were covered in lace tablecloths with flowers and tall pink tapers. On table stood a beautiful three-tier wedding cake which was duly cut by the bride and groom and then cut for serving by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. William Reid, and Mrs. Tycho, the groom's mother.

Mrs. J. S. Irvine, Mrs. G. W. Abott, Mrs. S. D. Macdonald and Mrs. P. Wikdal poured while those serving were Mrs. Alex Mitchell, Mrs. Tommy Fraser, floats are still a long way from Mrs. J. M.
