

MISS C.N.E. 1948—Fred Haines, well-known Canadian artist, chose her for his latest work, "Miss C.N.E. 1948." She is 17-year-old, from Toronto, chosen from among close to 300 contestants. With 25 other Canadian teen-agers she models Canadian-made clothes at the C.N.E. Mr. Haines was one of three judges.

Reminiscences and Reflections

...of successful contrast, let it be formally claimed, that among items known as business may be classified the P.G.E. Railway, warehouse at Rupert, development of anthracite coal fields and two prominent totem poles near a stream.

Among fishing industry notes appears a reference to "black cod and sable fish." We live and learn! Evidently, there is a distinct difference between the two. And all these years, the idea had prevailed that the only difference was the distinction between medium and tweedledee.

To rob a bank in Vancouver, anywhere else, one supposes, involves the decision to demand cash as well as cash. The outcome occurs at fairly regular intervals along between 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Little originality Heaven-sent genius is discerned. Have you ever heard of a bank robber being caught and soaked?

One ever tried to plunder a bank in Prince Rupert! Not that the field has never been mined a lush one but solely the disturbing fact that the job of getting away would be with difficulties. That's what looked years ago and it's the same today. Here there are no crowds and no big bank hold-up would be more excitement than a alarm fire, and another strike on Park Avenue.

One day, a policeman in the local lock-up had a mission to enter the jail. Not of the handful of prisoners considered important but was quick to reveal his had not left him. With a

THEY WENT THAT WAY—King George seems to be pointing something of interest to the evident amusement of Queen Elizabeth (both above) as they sit in an open landau during the opening of the Royal Ascot race meet. The opening of this meet was highlighted by the new look in ladies' fashions and recaptured some of its pre-war glory.

GAVE THEIR SEVEN CHILDREN AWAY—Leaving through an album of snapshots of their seven small children are Mr. and Mrs. William W. Harvey, of Miami, Fla., who have given their family away via adoption because Harvey says he can't raise them on his small income, and Mrs. Harvey is seriously ill. Harvey is a radio announcer. The children have been adopted by families in Florida and the Harveys plan to leave the state, change their name and "try to fashion a new life somewhere we are not known." In picture he is wearing dark glasses because he is afraid the publicity might hurt his chances for employment. Harvey is a former resident of Binghamton, N.Y.

Sidereal time, used mostly in astronomy, is nearly but not exactly star time. It is measured by the daily rotation of the vernal equinox point in the sky.

LITERAL NAME
The paddle-wheel derives its name from the fact it originally consisted of a series of paddles or paddle-like spokes, inserted in an axle or drum.
