BASKETWEAVING

On the last two evenings of this year Prince Rupert's Senior Titleholders will take the floor for the first time since winning that honor on Alberni's basketball court. Their opposition on this New Year card will be the Ketchikan Rockets, top team of the Juneau tournament last year and recognized as the Alaska champs. It seems then that the comming series should mean something in prestige.

Coach Alex Bill, at any rate, is leaving nothing to chance. His large turnout of the past two months is now boiled down to a select squad and he will continue to pace them through vigorous workouts during the festive layoff. Both Alex and his team are anxious to hit the maple in top shape and give the fans a New Years show they won't regret.

CITATION WINS RICH PURSES

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 11—Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, thanks to Citation, galloped off with leading honors for the 1948 New York racing season. The colt won his four starts and collected $246,200.00. Among the trainers Hirsch Jacobs led while Ted Atkinson led the jockeys, winning 198 times for total earnings of one million.

BREED COMBINATION

Foxhounds have been bred and reared for more than 300 years; they are a combination of the southern hound with its keen nose and the greyhound, noted for its running power.

ARTISTICALLY DESIGNED

But what provision have we for those who wish to take part in outdoor activities and for those who wish to watch? There is the Gyro Park at the corner of McBride and Sixth Avenue. For the past few years this has been a popular centre for the city softball leagues. Here on many occasions there are crowds of spectators thoroughly enjoying the games, but enjoying

RARE BIRD—With several expeditions now searching for the nesting grounds of the Whooping Crane, a bird which may be extinct as a Dodo bird in a few years, this picture of the rare bird is of interest. Standing about five feet high, the crane is almost entirely white with carmine red skin about its face and a yellow beak. The larger ones have black wing tips. There are less than 30 of these birds alive. At one time they were common in all parts of the Canadian west. Ornithologists are now seeking the breeding grounds in an attempt to prevent the Whooping Crane from disappearing entirely. (CP Photo)

Today in SportsProper Playing Ground Seen As Vital Need For This City*ALGOMA PARK SUGGESTED AS BEST OUTDOOR GROUNDS SITE

(By M. E. ANDERER)

The support by the citizens at the recent plebiscite of the setting aside of one mill of taxation for the improvement of Roosevelt Park was gratifying, but to this observer it dealt only with a minor aspect of the question of parks in the city generally. The whole question of parks needs to be faced realistically and on a long-term basis.

Parks may be considered from two points of view, and these do not conflict. One is the provision of scenic areas where citizens, as well as visitors, may relax in pleasant surroundings, and the other is where the athletically-inclined may have the opportunity to engage in games and sports with the two-fold purpose of building up their physical body and also providing spectators with interesting competitions. How do we stand in this regard?

There are some conditions which we cannot change. It is with its three-quarters of a tragedy that in this province million of square miles there is such a lack of playing accommodation for our people. Not one of our city schools has nearly enough playing space. Yet while in the schools there are over twelve hundred children who should have every encouragement to take part in games and sports under the most favorable conditions, they have not enough room to play a decent game without interfering with other games and pastimes. This is one part of a long range policy that should be faced and solved.

And what of the parks we have! McClymont Park is well equipped, thanks mainly to the Gyro Club. There are swings and other apparatus, while this past year the club has made the splendid contribution of a first-class swimming pool. The organized games under the supervision of the Civic Centre staff are a most valuable asset, to the young people specially, and to the community as a whole. The full value of this will be realized more fully as the years go on and our younger citizens become our leaders in the community.

The Seal Cove park provides the east-enders with some playing space and is much used and appreciated by them. On Fraser Street we have the Alder Park with some playground equipment but especially notable for its unique collection of totem poles. This is an outstanding attraction for visitors, and indeed should be much more appreciated by the citizens themselves.

The C.N.R. Park is a beauty spot and with the fine view from the stand arouses and maintains the interest of visitors. The fountain and the bowling green appeal to travellers as scenes to be remembered.

What we need is a centrally-located sports park, one with a suitable playing surface, one that can be improved, one where grand stands will not be blown down by the occasional gales that sweep the heights and where spectators are chilled to the bone.

This columnist suggests the best answer is Algoma Park. It is situated just off McBride Street and across from McClymont Park. This is a centrally-located spot. The soil is fertile, and soft (!)—a very real
