CARROLL COLLEGE AGAIN—Back here tonight and tomorrow after a four-game series in southeastern Alaska, in which they won from Ketchikan and lost by a scant two points in the last minute with Metlakatla, Alaska. Last night this team made basketball history by travelling to Kitkatla, forty miles from here, to play at the official opening of the newly renovated basketball hall. The boys had a fine time in spite of nine hours on a fish packer and won their game 70 to 36. The team was defeated here last week 66 to 60.

National League fielding records for 1950 are divided into two groups, the first comprising players who served at one position in 50 or more games, and the other showing those in fewer than ten games. Leadership in each position is based on participation in 100 or more games. Gilbert R. Hodges, Brooklyn, for the second consecutive year, led the first basemen with a mark of .994. By participating in 159 double plays, Hodges supplanted the old mark of 156 made in 1949 by Frank A. McCormick, Cincinnati. Jack R. Robinson, Brooklyn, led the second basemen with a percentage of .986. Robinson broke the record of 128 double plays set by Anthony Cuccinello for Cincinnati in 1931 and again with Boston in 1936. Robinson participated in 133 double plays.

Albert F. Schoendienst, St. Louis, broke his own National League fielding records for consecutive games and total chances without error. Schoendienst went 57 games handling 320 chances flawlessly from May 30 (1st game) until the ninth inning of the game of July 20 against New York. His former records were 44 games and 235 chances without a miscue, which started September 15, 1948 and was broken May 29, 1949. William R. Cox, Brooklyn, was the leading third baseman, with a mark of .957. Henry Thompson, New York, by participating in 43 double plays, surpassed the old mark of 41 held by Harold J. Traynor, Pittsburgh, 1925. Willie E. Jones, Philadelphia, by playing in 157 games at third base, tied the mark held jointly by J. Carlisle Smith, Boston, 1915 and Arthur Devlin, New York, 1908. Tomas Glaviano, St. Louis, by making three errors in the ninth inning, May 18 vs Brooklyn, tied a National League record held by many players.

Martin W. Marion, St. Louis, topped the shortstops with .970. Granville W. Hamner, Philadelphia, by playing in 157 games at shortstop, tied the mark held by Joseph B. Tinker, Chicago, 1908. Waldon T. Westlake, Pittsburgh, headed the outfielders with a mark of .991. Wesley W. Westrum, New York set a new National League fielding mark for catchers with a percentage of .999, displacing old one of .998 made by B. Earl Grace of Pittsburgh, 1932. Gerald L. Staley, St. Louis, by handling 56 chances without an error, led the pitchers with 1000.

Harlem Globe Trotters Again

That glittering coterie of basketball stars known as the Harlem Globetrotters, is headed this way again with a jam-packed bag of tricks to delight the fans as only they can do, at the Civic Centre next Friday and Saturday, when they headline against the Prince Rupert Jets.

Each year experts and fans alike believe the pulsating Globetrotters have reached the greatest heights a basketball aggregation can attain. It doesn't seem possible that even the Globetrotters, famed everywhere in the world for doing the unexpected, can continually surpass their glorified achievements of the previous season. But they seem to do so.

No basketball club in the history of the sport can match the Globetrotters' exploits of last season—namely, the winning of 151 of 153 games during their regular schedule, sweeping the Cuba Invitational Tournament at Havana, triumphing by a count of 11 victories to 7 over the sensational 1949-50 College All-Americans, who banded together to oppose the Globetrotters in an amazing transcontinental flying World's Series of basketball that saw a myriad of attendance records shattered and, finally, invading Europe and North Africa for 72 wins in 73 games against the Stars of America, college and pro players of top caliber selected for the trip, and the strongest teams in the countries visited.

The start of this, their twenty-fourth consecutive season of play, saw a record of 3,421 victories and 245 defeats chalked to their credit. A percentage of .933 for 23 seasons of every night ball.

Blackwood On Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

"What you need, Muzzy, is a complete and (I could hope) fatal overhaul job on what I laughingly refer to as your brain," said Mr. Abel after today's hand was played. "Do you think there is some sort of a bonus for single-handedly driving the opponents into a makeable game?"

"They're not going to push me around when I've got a six-card suit," replied Mr. Muzzy with no logic at all. And that ended the discussion, largely because Mr. Abel was speechless.

None vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 C	1 H	Pass	Pass
1 S	2 H	2 S	Pass
Pass	3 H	3 S	Pass
4 S	All pass

Yes, Mr. Muzzy could have passed the hand out at two spades. Mr. Dale passed that bid because he wasn't sure whether his partner had a really good spade raise or whether she was stretching a bit, competing for the partial score. He knew, though, after Mrs. Keen promptly bid three spades over Mr. Muzzy's three heart call.

Mr. Dale also knew that four spades would be close but there were several things in his favor. First, Muzzy's defence was always bad. Second, the repeated overcalls placed most or all of the outstanding high cards in the West hand and that might prove helpful.

Mr. Muzzy opened the queen of hearts which was won in dummy with the ace. Now Mr. Dale made a fine trump play. On the bidding he placed the king of spades on his left. If he finessed the queen and it lost to the king, another trump trick would be lost, too, because the opponents had both the jack and ten.

But what if the king was only guarded once? That seemed to be the best shot, so at the second trick Mr. Dale led a small spade and went right up with the ace. He followed with the six of spades and of course Mr. Muzzy had to win with the king. He also won a trick with the jack of hearts and then shifted to the trey of clubs.

Declarer won with the ace, making a mental note that Mr. Muzzy must not have had both the king and queen of clubs else he would have led the king at this point. It was already clear that he had made his three bid without the ace or king of hearts. In fact the evidence was piling up that Muzzy just about had to have the queen of diamonds.

So Mr. Dale laid down the ace of diamonds, followed with the jack and the queen died an inglorious death. A club had to be conceded at the end but the contract was made and Mr. Muzzy had scored another victory—for his opponents.

College Team Back In Rupert

Carroll College basketballers are back in Prince Rupert for their return engagement tonight with the All-Stars. If the visitors win tonight's encounter, they will play the third of a two-of-three series with the All-Stars. If they lose again, they will play the local high school in another exhibition game. The Americans lost out to the local boys in a fast game at the Civic Centre last week.

Louis Hits Low In NBA Rating

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Boxing Association yesterday gave ex-heavyweight champion Joe Louis his lowest boxing rating in 13 years of campaigning.

Issuing its final ratings for 1950, NBA declared there was no logical contenders for the crown now worn by Ezzard Charles.

The NBA has placed Louis alongside Lee Savold of New Jersey and labelled the two as "outstanding boxers."
