Can Papers Stand It

\//IETHER or not, because of prohibitive pub-W lication costs such as the recent $10 newsprint jump at Powell River, a free press can continue in Canada has been asked. Such a query need not be surprising. All the casualties do not happen in Korea. On this continent, comments the Ottawa Journal, hardly a day but a newspaper somewhere gives up the ghost. But no one hears of a languishing newsprint industry.

TRAFALGAR ANNIVERSARY

TODAY is the 145th anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar, a naval engagement off the cape of that name north of Gibraltar. The fleets of France and Spain were defeated. The British commander-in-chief, Lord Nelson, was shot, dying a few hours later on board his flagship, HMS Victory. For more than a century after this, the naval power of Great Britain was supreme.

GRAIN HERE AGAIN

A OVEMENT of wheat through the port of IVI Prince Rupert again this winter will be welcome traffic although, having been so busy with the stimulus of other things in the last few years, the city has not been worrying as much as usual about its waterfront white elephants of which the elevator is, of course, not the only example.

It is noted that the port of Montreal is complaining about having so far received not a single bushel of the 1950 wheat crop—even though the closing of the season for navigation is only two months hence. The trouble there seems to be that the ships on the Great Lakes which usually handle the grain from the lakehead ports to Montreal have been too busy with other commodities to carry wheat.

With a big crop being harvested, even though quality may be inferior owing to the poor fall weather conditions, there is every prospect of a glut of wheat on the Pacific Coast this winter. That, of course, is the only reason that Prince Rupert will get any wheat. No change of policy seems involved in an ill wind which is happening to blow us some good.
