that this may be the lucky week. They're not discouraged by people like Sir Alan Herbert, who as an independent member of parliament campaigned loud and long against pools. Said Sir Alan: "In pools, the promoter risks nothing at all except his overhead. He does not say he will give you 60-1; he says he may give you sixpence, six thousand pounds or six million pounds. It depends how many other mugs come in, and how much he takes out of the pool."

Religious associations campaign against pools on moral grounds and because the promoters' accounts are not audited. But the prospect of generous prize money, plus the average Briton's genuine interest in soccer, keeps the pools alive. The system is simple. Each week the promoters distribute lists of Saturday soccer matches, and the customer, using the symbols 1-2-X, for win, loss or draw, tries to forecast results.

Most popular forms are the "penny points," based on 14 forecasts requiring considerable clerical energy, and the "treble chance," calling for eight correctly presided draws. Those who participate hope to be as lucky as the record prize winner, 50-year-old Mrs. Evelyn Knowlson, who recently collected £104,990 ($314,970) or Burma veteran Thomas Wood, whose £94,335 cheque left him (he said) feeling cool as a cucumber.

The Mr. and Mrs. Moneybags who win aren't always happy. Disagreement over who should get the biggest share made bitter enemies of two married couples who had been neighbors and close friends. Others are hounded by hard-luck letters. One pool company warns winners that there are a lot of sharks and sharpers ready to help spend the money. But success is rare.

what's so different about hotels?
Scenery, for one thing. At the Sylvia, overlooking Vancouver's English Bay, you enjoy the glorious panorama of beach—sky—sea—mountains. And Sylvia Service is as outstanding as the scenery—attentive, genial, with a friendly interest that makes you feel at home. If you bring the younger members of the family, baby-sitting service is provided. Accommodation is varied—and reasonable. You can cook your own meals or dine in the sky, where the food is as superb as the view. Though far from the noise of city traffic, you're within easy reach of town—at the Sylvia.
