Pulp Mill Opening

After three years of construction boom, Prince Rupert's economy will take on a new and permanent stability with the commencement of operations next February, as announced by George Schneider, vice-president of Celanese, of the Columbia Cellulose Co. (Celanese Corporation of America) high alpha pulp plant at nearby Watson Island.

Prince Rupert's big pulp mill, which we talked about for so many years and almost despaired of for so long, is now almost fait accompli. In fact, we have come to take it as a matter of course. It has become an accepted fact to such an extent that we possibly do not fully appreciate its importance.

We have had a busy time the past two or three years with the happy-go-lucky and careless days of the constructionist and boomer which have brought a floating, free-spending and reckless type of population. Next year, when the plant comes into operation, a change will be noted. We will be receiving a new type of worker in the skilled and high paid craftsmen—steady folk who will become worthy citizens and not the itinerant and temporary people who come to a community on any big construction job such as this.

The opening of the plant, for operation will mark a new era in the history of Prince Rupert's development. We will be an industrial community which will fit in well with our old, reliable, steady and still highly valuable fishing industry which since the very first has been our mainstay and which will, of course, go on playing a prominent part in our well-being and prosperity.

UNITED STATES POLITICS

POLITICAL doings in United States are always of keen interest to us here in Canada and so the off-year elections on the other side attract a considerable modicum of observer interest here. The presidency is not involved except from the standpoint of significance of political trend.

With a third of the seats in the Senate and the entire House of Representatives in competition, the actual political control of the country could be changed. This has happened before in a mid-term election and has made it most embarrassing for the administration if not rendering their work almost ineffectual.

In this case, the Republicans have to win but six seats to control the Senate and 26 to dominate the House of Representatives.

After 20 years of one-party rule, what happens in these mid-term elections might well be of important significance prior to the presidential contest in 1952 which, of course, is always the most spectacular if not always the greater importance.

CRACKPOT ACT

IT HAS BEEN part of the careers of six presidents of the United States to be shot at or otherwise made the target of assassination attempts. Of the six chief executives upon whose lives attempts have been made, three have been slain—Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

In almost all cases such incidents are the work of some fanatic laboring under delusion, malicious or otherwise, as is, of course, any murderous assault.

The incident this week concerning itself with President Truman was, undoubtedly, something of this character. To go up to the executive mansion flourishing and firing pistols was, of course, unusual. This was obviously some sort of a crackpot act by unbalanced persons.

It cost them dearly. One is dead and the other is seriously injured and charged with murder. He will probably get short shrift.

FOR THIS HIGH PURPOSE

The plainest of facts is this: we do not have one world. We have hoped and prayed and tried to believe that we do have one world; but we have two. The world is split right down the middle, politically, economically and, what is far more important, ideologically and spiritually. And our world is too small now to have two worlds. That is what all our trouble is about in world affairs which affect you and me.

There are two ways in which two worlds can become one. One way is by total conquest, the other is by some sort of voluntary agreement. This is the first task of our time if we are to survive. Agreement is all we can hope for just now for relations between nations because it will take many years for a common devotion to common ideals.

These are the facts. But what are we going to do about them? If we stop with saying: "these are the facts," then there is nothing ahead of us but the autopsy. We must look and act on the facts in the light of the highest truth we know.

What is the highest truth we know? I speak with humility and with undaunted confidence to proclaim the witness of the ages to the truth which is in Christ. To a great multitude one day He said: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy but to fulfill."

If we were to go on and read further we would find what He meant by these words. We would be impressed, too, with the way that Jesus sought to face the old facts of hate, greed, lust, pride, bigotry, ill will and evil; not by fighting fire with fire which brings ruin, but with spiritual and moral forces which man can use with God, jointly in faith.

This was the terrific problem Jesus had to wrestle with in the Garden of Gethsemane. He knew that the high cause for which He had come into the world was to be a revelation of the power of love, mercy, forgiveness, at work among men and in conflict with powers of darkness. And for this high purpose He gladly endured the cross and is now "set down at the right hand of God."

We need to align ourselves
