Revitalize Boy Scouts

Plan Achievement Adopted After Hearing Provincial Executive

"Plan Achievement," designed revitalize the Boy Scout movement in Canada, was explained to the Prince Rupert Boy Scout Association last night by Executive Commissioner R. Ken Jordan. Adopted by the Association here, it is a sequel to "Plan Opportunity," which was designed shortly after General Dan Spry became commissioner to reorganize headquarters and change the organizational set-

There were still "bugs" in the scouting of older boys. movement and "Maple Leaf Plan" was put forward to provincia! organizations. Finally, strong group committee and exon examination, the plan was tended to leaders and masters. found to be not what scouters The plan target called for a thought was necessary. Ideas from all over the country were gathered, sorted out and considered. The final result was "Plan Achievement." the plan Mr. Jordan was explaining last night.

In drawing up the plan, Mr. Jordan explained, the volunteer scout had the right to overrule the professional scout.

The British Columbia council, the speaker said, at first felt the plan premature but, on consideration, decided it was very opportune. Speaking of volunteer helpers, he said there were many Mrs. G. Of the plan itself, Mr. Jordan said the first target was to emphasize the daily good turn for scouts. The good turn, he said, was being carried farther so that sixes and packs, patrols and troops organized for community good turns. He mentioned what some groups had chosen for their good turns.

Also "be prepared" was extended to groups so that Boy Scouts could take part in civil defence and disasters. He told of the good work the Boy Scouts had done during the floods at Winnipeg earlier in the year. He felt that advance training of older scouts for that sort of work would help keep up the interest

Leadership was also stressed in the plan. It started with a leader for every ten boys. In this respect, he suggested that as many as possible attend the summer courses. Among other benefits of the courses he placeed trading of ideas among leaders from different places high on the list.

There were also supported targets. Formation of a badge committee with a badge secretary would give the district commissioner a better picture of the badges held in the district. Each badge would have to go through the committee and a certificate signed by the secretary would be required before the badge could be issued. In addition to other advantages, he said, this would tend to standardize throughout

Summing up, he said the boy the children at Miller Bay. The Mr. Jordan told the meeting was the most important part of President Fred Conrad was in
