

KING ED ON AIR—

Joe Goscoe's Classroom Looks Like Miniature Radio Station

A ten-year-old student steps up to the microphone: "Good evening. This is your King Edward School broadcasting station. We are glad to present our Christmas play directed and written by Joseph Goscoe."

Bells chime, music blends. The choir fades into the play as announcer Camille Lindseth introduces the cast from the King Edward School grades five and six who have practised for three weeks under their music teacher, Mr. Goscoe.

As the announcer draws us into the Christmas setting of an average town over radio station CFPR, Dec. 12 from 8:30 to 9:00 p.m., the work of modern teachers and pupils is realized.

During the play, which is a holiday skit in theme similar to Dickens' Christmas story, the moral that "all kids are O.K. if you show them that you want them around" is expressed.

King Edward School wants their pupils.

They will use 300 youngsters in the annual Christmas concert to be held for parents after the radio play. But the training and much of the music recorded by the senior pupils of the elementary school will contribute to the concert.

Variations in harmony singing "Mother Goose" and "Old King Cole" by George Pearson, Camille Lindseth, Judy Felsenthal, Beverly Calderone, Shirra Haliday, Catherine Finlayson and Janet Spark open the radio program.

A mixed choir of over 60 pupils will sing in choral harmony "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "O Come Emmanuel," "Joy to the World," and "Gloria Excelsis portrayal by Derrick Allen. Besides continuing in the same "old man's" tone as Mr. Beetle, Derrick spoke the narration of the play.

Other members of the cast are: Dorothy Wick (Betty); Jimmy Christianson (Bill); Elvin Nystedt (Salesman) and (Mr. Jones); Gail Redpath (Mrs. Jones) and Michael Macdonald, who practised the part of Mr. Jones but was unable to attend the recordings.

"The cast are volunteers—all from Grade Five, ranging from 10 to 11 years old," explains Mr. Goscoe.

Requiring only three one-half hour rehearsals, the radio program was arranged to fit students' school work.

"During language period we practised the script; in our music period we rehearsed the music," Mr. Goscoe said, confirming the use of radio and dramatics to the school work.

The teachers have found many pupils unable to speak from a stage, received voice training with Mr. Goscoe's tape recorder, students are able to criticize their own voices.

"It is indispensable for training students' speech and their attitude before the public," says Mr. Moore, who plans further radio work through the co-operation of the school board when King Edward students move into their new school to be finished before the end of the school year.

Prince Rupert residents recall the school's weekly children's programs of last year.

"But it takes the work of all the staff in preparing such events; they give their individual help," affirmed the principal.

The technical experience of Mr. Goscoe, who has assignments with eastern commercial radio dramas, combine with the organizing of Mr. Moore and the staff. And the students co-operate by taking good care of the thousands of dollars worth of equipment that Mr. Goscoe has Boston's power-packed Red Sox walked off with the lion's share of American League batting laurels in 1950, with their brilliant, young all-around star, Billy Goodman, capturing the junior circuit batting championship on a mark of .354.

As the Fenway Park club scooped up a flock of plate honors, including the team batting title on a 20-point margin over New York and Detroit, young Mr. Goodman appeared in 110 games, playing every infield spot in addition to patrolling the outfield. Doing a great all-around defensive job, the Red Sox "one-man bench" caught fire with his bat in late August, winding up with a total of 150 hits in 424 trips to the plate.

Billy scored 91 runs, contributed 25 doubles, three triples and four homers to the Red Sox attack.

Manager Steve O'Neill's club finished with a collective average of .302, exactly 20 points ahead of the 282 team plate mark turned in by both the pennant-winning New York Yankees and second-place Detroit Tigers.

The runs-batted-in laurels were shared for a second straight season by two Red Sox stars. In 1949 it was Ted Williams and Vern Stephens tied at 159 each.

The past campaign saw Stephens and Walt Dropo deadlocked in driving runs home, each finishing with 144. Rums scored laurels went to another Red Sox, little Dom DiMaggio, who crossed the plate 131 times. Dropo led in total bases, 326, with Dom DiMaggio leading the stolen base department with 15 pilfered sacks.

The younger of the DiMaggio brothers also had a share in the three-base hit spoils, making 11 to tie with Detroit's Hoot Evers and the Red Sox Bobby Doerr. The home-run honors went to Cleveland's first-year star, third baseman Al (Flip) Rosen, who made 37 round-trippers.

George Kell, Detroit's ace third sacker who handed his batting crown down to Goodman, had several firsts to his credit. George had the most at bats, 641, led the circuit in total hits, 218, was the two-base hit maker with 56, and finished with a fine .340 average, less than three points under the figure that won him the 1949 plate crown.

The New York shortstop star, little Phil Rizzuto, whose finest season saw him named most valuable player, made 19 sacrifice hits to lead that department. He and Kell were the only players in the league to reach the 200-hit total, Phil hitting that figure on the head. Evers of Detroit was caught stealing the most times, nine.

The league home-run total of 973 was 90 more than the previous league record of 883, set in 1940, and 204 more than the homer total of 1949.

In all, 17 players who went to bat 400 or more times entered the exclusive circle of "300 hitters," compared to the 12 who made it in 1949. Bottom man in this group at 301 was New York's brilliant Joe DiMaggio, with other 300 hitting Yanks being Hank Bauer, Yogi Berra and Rizzuto. Boston Red Sox who hit better than 300 while going to bat at least 400 times were Goodman, DiMaggio, Al Zarilla, Dropo and Johnny Pesky.

Skating Site Being Graded

Arrangements have been made through the good offices of J. D. McRae M.L.A., for a small provincial grader to go to work on the Gyro Ball Park and put it in shape for the holding of water to be frozen in the next cold spell, thus really providing the skating rink which enthusiasts led by W. F. Stone and W. D. Lambie have been working on in recent weeks.

The grader will level off the field and bank up the already cribbed sides so the water will be properly retained on flooding. The difficulty in recent cold snaps was that the water escaped. This should now be prevented.

Records In Bowls Match

The outstanding match Wednesday night in Mixed League Bowling ended in a 2-all draw in points for Pushovers and Fashion Footwear. This match produced all of the high scorers for the evening and also provided a new high team single of 1425 which was scored by Fashion Footwear.

Both teams are very evenly balanced and were in good form Wednesday night and in all probability will prove the teams to be contended with at the end of this season.

High scorers were: Ladies' high single and high three game total, Bertha Dunbar, Pushovers, 316 and 89. Men's high single Al Manson, Fashion Footwear, 275. Men's high three game aggregate, J. Paul, Fashion Footwear, 746.

Team results were as follows: Headpinners 4, Optimists 0, Prince Rupert Plumbing 4, Cook's Jewellers 0, Flow-outs 3, Cantels 1, Fashion Footwear 2, Pushovers 2, Bulvers 2, Great West Life 2, Shenton Sheet 2, Conrad's 4, Scub's Furs 0, Booth School 3, Dobb Printing 1, Bulky Market 3, Penguin Hobby 1, Cloverleafs 3, Sons of Norway 1, Social Welfare 3, Ideal Cleaners 1, Miller Bay 3, Overwaita 1.

Wedding Dolls For Princess

BRANTFORD, Ont. (P)—Authentically-costumed figurines representing the principals in the royal wedding of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh have been sent to their daughter, 3½-month-old Princess Anne.

Mrs. Nina M. Webb of Paris, Ont., made the nine-inch dolls—the bride and groom, bridesmaid Princess Margaret and the two pages, Prince William of Gloucester and Prince Michael of Kent.

Mrs. Webb had intended to send the dolls to Princess Elizabeth two years ago after exhibiting them at the Canadian National Exhibition. But she held them back in order to get a first-hand look at the wedding gown, which was scheduled to be exhibited in Canada, in order to perfect the gown of her doll-princess.

The other costumes were designed from Mrs. Webb's huge collection of royal wedding photographs.

"I decided to wait until their first child was born, hoping all the time it would be a girl," she said. When Prince Charles was born, she waited for the birth of a girl before sending the dolls as a Christmas present.

BRILLIANT GOWNS The doll-princess is dressed in a white satin gown with a long train containing 114 stars. Satin stars and brilliants adorn the met gown of Princess Margaret and the doll-groom wears blue
