Minot, North Dakota, People
 Here to See Relatives

Visitors in the city this week are Mr. and Mrs. William Alger and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Mober of Minot, North Dakota, who motored from the midwest city, arriving last Friday. Mr. Alger is the son of Mrs. Alger and the late Sam Alger, pioneer C.N.R. section foreman and who took part in construction of the C.N.R. park here. Arthur Alger of this city is a brother and Mrs. J. L.
 Bethurem, a sister.

In their 2,300-mile motor trip Mr. Alger said that he found the roads in the poorest condition between Williams Lake and Houston, where five days of rain had made them soft and slippery.
 Mr. Alger is no stranger to Prince Rupert, having first visited the city 33 years ago and many times since. He is a locomotive engineer on the Great Northern Railway.

The party plans to leave for the east at the end of the week.

RAILWAY INTERESTED (Continued from Page One)

port for the territory of Alaska.
 He again gave assurance of the company's co-operation in anything that could be appropriately done to bring about a change in United States shipping regulations, particularly the Jones Act, which restricted the use of Canadian vessels in transporting goods to and from Alaska. However, this was something the United States itself and such representations as Canada might make would have of necessity to be most discreetly couched.

Asked as to company policy in regard to its dry dock and shipbuilding property here, Mr.
 Johnson pointed out even such plants as Yarrow's at Victoria and Burrard at Vancouver were running out of work and curtailing operations. The whole future of shipbuilding in Canada was a problem which was causing concern. Costs of shipbuilding had become so high on both sides of the Atlantic that shipbuilding plans were being curtailed.

Speaking of the railway strike situation, Mr. Johnson expressed the opinion that it would not reach the point where a strike would actually take place. He had hopes of a compromise settlement being reached on the wage rate issue.

Mr. Johnson left here at mid-afternoon yesterday for the interior. His intention, he said, was to see all the Prince Rupert-Jasper line by daylight, particularly the sections which had been damaged by the recent flood conditions. While the flood damage had not been so widespread on the Prince Rupert line as it had been on the Vancouver line, such damage as there was here had been of a major nature. The big washout

'Fabulous Profits'

Mr. W owns a business.

This year he paid off the last installment on his house, traded his '36 car in for a brand new one, and sent his oldest son to University. People say he was doing pretty well.

He is... compared to his lot fifteen years ago.

It was 1932. Mr. W didn't have a house or a car.
 But he did have a good idea... a way of moulding cement, quicker and cheaper. So he took a chance and borrowed enough money (capital) to set up his own factory. He was executive, salesman, foreman and laborer. At the end of the year he'd made $339.49. He knew he could do better, so he borrowed again, and hired his first employee.
 At the end of the second year his profits were $527.58.
 Mr. W took the plunge again and put all those profits into new equipment and hired another man.

Every year since, he has been doing the same thing... creating a few more jobs, building up his business... improving his product, until now, fifteen years later, he employs eighteen men. Last year he paid out nearly $40,000 in wages. Without the profits he made, he doesn't see how those new jobs or that $40,000 pay-roll would have been possible.

With them he has been able to create jobs and a decent standard of living for himself and eighteen other men.
 If he continues to grow, Mr. W will probably be accused of making fabulous profits.

But the people who have gained most from those profits are the men who receive that $40,000 pay-roll and whose jobs those profits have made possible.
