THREE-YEAR-OLD Elliott Stennes, son of Elmer O. Stennes, Weymouth, Mass., clockmaker, poses with 13 clocks in his father's collection. Stennes has 50 of these Boston subway station clocks, which he bought because "I needed the good clock movements they contain. They are better than any made today." Stennes makes grandfather clocks.

Courting Stick's Revival Urged

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—If your teenage daughter is hogging the telephone in long talks with her boy friends, why not solve the problem by buying her a courting stick?

The time seems ripe for a revival of this communication tool of lovers, popular in old New England.

An antiquarian friend of mine, doing research on old marriage customs for the 50th anniversary of the Fuller Brush Co., which distributes cosmetic and brushes, said:

"Television made the courting stick infinitely practical again in the average home."

What is a courting stick? Well, in colonial times it was a hollow wooden tube six to eight feet long. Sternly-chaperoned lovers could sit on opposite sides of big fireplaces and whisper romantic nonsense back and forth unheard by other watching members of the family.

While the courting stick, the forerunner of Alexander Graham Bell's invention, would seem to fit well in the television age, another old colonial courting custom, now has few firm friends left.

Burma Fights Communism With Reforms

By DAVID CHIPP

RANGOON (Reuters)—The Burma government, by pursuing a vigorous policy of social and land reforms, is defeating communism by example as well as by force.

The program of rehabilitation and development is seen by many observers to be a constructive and positive reply to the spread of communism in Asia, for it has successfully countered every Communist argument.

The Burmese policy of producing a system which experience has shown works better than communism is beginning to bear fruit. Over the last few months a number of fairly high-ranking Red leaders have surrendered, saying that they no longer believe in the revolutionary cause.

But even more important than the leaders has been its effect on the ordinary non-party peasants who previously either supported the Communists actively or tolerated them, thinking that they would improve their lot.

Their disillusionment has been increased by the army's successes against the Communist insurgents, especially the 1952 campaign southwest of Mandalay which split up the big concentrations and forced them into small bandit groups.

The Burma government has nationalized land and begun to set up machinery for its equitable distribution. They set up co-operatives, awarded compensation to landlords and, above all, granted loans and help to peasants who had not the equipment or animals to start farming on their own.
