Interest in Stole General As Canadians Ponder Fabrics

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian women aren't too much concerned about the "ups and downs" of fashion this fall. A Canadian Press survey of the fall shows indicates they are preoccupied with fabrics.

"Three-dimensional" type fabrics are popular for coats. Combinations of jersey with other materials and tweeds are much in evidence for daytime wear. Heavy autumn cottons are making a hit in a number of western cities.

As for color, black will be the top choice in Nova Scotia, Quebec, Montreal and Edmonton. The rest of the west, and Toronto, incline towards an ever-increasing range of browns—changing from the deep brown and bronze shades to the cinnamon and champagnes.

STOLES ARE POPULAR

Interest in the stole seems country-wide, and the suit with a stole will appear in a number of large centres.

Fur stoles tend to the triangular, putting them closer to the cape classification—a lot easier to handle.

The blonde fur coat retains its popularity and the short-haired pelts, such as beaver and shearwater raccoon, will be much in evidence. The nylon "furs" are being eyed, too.

Incidentally some fashion authorities report Paris frequently looking fondly over her shoulder to the days of the fox furs. Some Parisians never relinquished them.

The modified pyramid fabric coat held sway last year, and this year it's modified even more. One color, in a graduation of shades, will be popular in the fabric coat.

Suits are marked "tweed" in the east, but in the west reports indicate worsted has the advantage. In Edmonton novelty worsted flannel suits with splash shades are in the lead. Vancouver is betting on worsted flannel suits too, with Oxford grey making a good showing.

Quebec is the only city to list tweed cloaks in the fall showings.

CURRENT STYLES

Waltz-length evening dresses will be worn this autumn, according to many department stores. Quebec City however apparently prefers the floor-length. Quebec also reports a cocktail dress of taffeta with low neck and back, and full skirt, whereas Toronto notes a trend away from taffeta to less crisp fabrics such as silk.

College toggerly will likely feature many of the leather and suede jackets, vests and trims. The heavy-knit bulky sweater may be making a comeback in Toronto but this may not be too evident this fall.

Snug little hats are pretty well the national choice for fall. The turban influence with a delft touch of drapery evidently holds wide appeal for the women of Winnipeg.

A wide choice is presented in shoes. A mere network of straps for evening wear, and Louis heels, are still evident. Suedes hold their popularity, and Montreals are tripping around in a lot of patent leather "pale turning" a favorable eye on a new beige satin shoe.

Victorian Enjoys Work In Ethiopia

VICTORIA — Allen Vincent-Barwood, who teaches school in Ethiopia and likes it, is visiting Victoria during the summer vacation period with his wife and their 20-month-old son Scott.

A native of Nelson, B.C., he has been teaching at the Haile Selassie first secondary school near Addis Ababa since 1950 and will soon return for another three years.

Vincent-Barwood, 32, has a degree in fine arts and Mrs. Vincent-Barwood in science.

He teaches industrial arts at a boarding school for Ethiopian boys from all parts of the country and all types of homes.

"There are about 200 of them and although they aren't any faster students than Canadians, they are the most diligent I have ever seen," he says. "They slip into the school at four and five in the morning during examination times to study. You just can't keep them away."

Ethiopia has no real national language and much business is conducted in either French or English. All school subjects are taught in English, so the boys have to study extra hard.

"One of the amazing things about the Ethiopians is that they speak French without an accent," said Mrs. Vincent-Barwood.

People who appreciate fine cars are turning to Monarch.

"... I'm sold on Monarch's effort-saving power features!"

"It seems to me an engineer should know what he's talking about when it comes to sizing up a car. So, the other day when I was talking building plans with George MacDonald I told him I was in the market for a new car and asked him what he thought. He said he drove a Monarch—because he recognized really fine engineering when he saw it. Well, that's how I come to be driving a Monarch now. At a little extra cost I was able to get power steering, power brakes, power seat and automatic transmission. And believe me, I'm sold on Monarch's effort-saving power features! And the power you get from Monarch's V-8 engine you have to feel for yourself before you can believe how smooth and lively it is. Of course, this is the best looking car I've ever driven—but I don't need to tell you that. The admiring glances it gets from everyone who sees it tell that story better than any words."

This could be your experience, too... why not see your Monarch dealer today?

Overdrive, white sidewall tires and
