Women Add To Court Says Female Jurist

LOS ANGELES (P)—Is a woman juror more responsive to emotional appeal than a male? Is she more stubborn, more impatient?

A considered "no" is the answer from Judge Mildred Lillie, who should know. At 39, she's a judge with seven years on the bench.

Not only that, she's indisputably feminine - attractive, poised, with reddish hair and blue eyes. Outside a courtroom, you would never guess she is a judge.

She thinks women have contributed much to the courts, not the least of which is sprucing up the male lawyer.

WOMEN AND DIGNITY

"He is more careful of his personal appearance and his manner of speaking," she says. "The end result of women's presence in the jury box is more dignity, more courtesy and more consideration all around by lawyers in the courtroom."

A male might have some misconception about a women's stubbornness during a juryroom argument, but not Judge Lillie.

"She generally does not permit pride to keep her from changing her mind, providing a matter is logically and clearly presented and she conscientiously feels she is wrong. But women are not easily led, either."

What appeals to women most in the conduct of a trial?

"Perhaps the idea of fair play. They dislike 'finagling' of any kind, evasiveness and deceit. They like a concise and open approach to the problem at hand, and they are hard to fool."

The old oil lamp is still standard lighting equipment in many cottages and on many farms. They can be a dangerous fire hazard unless care is taken to prevent accidents. Don't place the wall or hanging type where it can burn wall or ceiling. Don't keep a lighted lamp on a table where there is danger of it being knocked or pulled over.

Nine-and-a-half-year-old Martine Toussaint-Samit happens to be one of France's youngest playwrights. The studious schoolgirl wrote a play titled, "Pearls of Crystal," which will soon be dramatized by a French radio company.

He's changing the nation's landscape

You may see the result of what he is doing in the city's changing skyline—or out where the corn grows tall... in the mushrooming suburbs—or in the new look of Main Street in a mellow old town.

Where many a vacant lot once stood, he helps fill it with a fine new school. Where you used to see a structure that was an eyesore you may now see a new apartment house, store or other building he played a role in providing.

Thanks in part to him, many houses rise here and there, or row on row, in community after community. New black ribbons of asphalt tie town to town. Somewhere, a new bridge is built.

New industrial plants, too, are sometimes the by-products of his helping hand. Perhaps one of them has provided you with a job.

And do you see those great steel towers that parade across the rolling farmlands, bearing power-laden wires in their outstretched arms? They may be monuments to this same man.

Who is he?

He represents all the millions of life insurance policyholders in Canada. And it's money from their premiums, which life insurance companies invest for them, that makes possible many such improvements as these throughout the nation.

So, if you are a life insurance policyholder building security for your family and yourself, you're also helping to build a better Canada!
