White Russian Woman Left Without Country

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Caterina Jacomo Basha, 63, a much-travelled White Russian, is a woman without a country.

Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne has refused to interfere with her deportation to Italy.

Mrs. Basha, who wants to stay in Canada because "it is so big and I such a small, ill, old woman with only my dog," entered this country last year on an Italian passport issued to her during the lifetime of her second husband, who was an Italian citizen.

Following his death in 1950, she left Shanghai, China, where she had lived for many years, and married Ellis T. Basha, an American citizen, in Brazil.

Mrs. Basha sought permission from the courts to remain in this country when Canadian immigration officials informed her she was to be deported because her passport expires November 4.

Superior Court was told the Italian embassy in Ottawa knew nothing of Mrs. Basha's case and that she would probably not be allowed to land in Italy because she now is the wife of an American, from whom she is estranged.
