Mr. Muzzy Takes Mr. Champion's Lecture To Heart and So Down Goes East in Bid

Mr. Champion was discussing this hand from the team of four match between his team and the team of the Uptown Club whose members bore the odd names of Mr. East, Mr. West.

"Look," he said, "put the king of diamonds right and I'll make 12 tricks on this hand. Put the king of clubs right and I'll make all the tricks. As it was I made five-odd by perfect technique. What happened in the other room, Dale, when you and Muzzy held the North-South hands?"

"Mr. East played the hand at four hearts," said Mr. Dale and he didn't make seven, six, five or even four. In other words, we set him a trick."

"What did he do, fall on his face?" Mr. Champion asked.

"No," Mr. Dale replied. "He made no errors. But against Muzzy's opening lead he didn't have a chance. Don't you see what happened?"

UNIVERSAL APPLICATION
Mr. Champion thought a while. Then, "I've got it," he said. "My lecture."

"Right," said Mr. Dale. "Your lecture to Muzzy in our practice session about leading fourth highest from his longest and best suit won the match for us. He's been in the habit of leading any old card from a long suit—third best, fifth best or what not."

"Of course you were talking mainly about leading against no trump contracts. Muzzy applies it to everything. Yes, believe it or not he opened the five of spades against Mr. East's four heart contract."

ACE KNOCKED OUT
You can see what this opening did. Mr. Dale won with the king of spades and returned the jack of clubs. Mr. East had no place to discard his losing clubs at this point because dummy's diamonds were not yet set up.

He took the club finesse and Mr. Muzzy won and, after an agonizing wait, returned a club. This knocked out Mr. East's ace and subsequently he had to lose another club as well as a trick to the king of diamonds. Down one.
