New Director Released By Red Cross

VANCOUVER (CP)—Red Cross officials Wednesday took a second look at their new director in B.C. and hurriedly fired her after realizing they had hired a prominent member of the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party.

Centre of the flurry in Red Cross headquarters was Beatrice Christina Ferneyhough, 45, of Vancouver and unsuccessful LPP candidate in the 1953 provincial election.

DAIRYMEN URGED TO DRINK MORE MILK TO CUT SURPLUS

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—An embarrassing lesson to dairymen on how not to reduce milk surpluses was given Wednesday by a department of agriculture representative at the annual union agricultural meeting.

County agent Joseph T. Brown said "the dairy farmers could help cut their own surplus problem by drinking a little more milk."

"I couldn't help noticing that there was no milk served at the Pure-Bred Dairy Association luncheon today."

Anglican Vicar Bans Freemasons From Pulpit

LONDON (AP)—An Anglican vicar Wednesday stirred up a three-year-long controversy simmering in Church of England councils by banning from his pulpit all freemason clergymen including the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Rev. Thornton Thrapp, former RAF chaplain and vicar of St. Mary Magdalene in London's Paddington district, singled out Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the archbishop and primate of All England and a past grand master of British freemasonry, for attack in his parish magazine.

"Because the archbishop is a Mason," wrote Mr. Thrapp, "we may fairly assume his opinions are unorthodox, and far more dangerous because they are kept secret from the non-masonic rank and file." He urged Dr. Fisher to "state in public the case for Christian masonry" and added: "Until he does, can he really expect our trust, our confidence, and our loyalty? I cannot give him mine."

The Church of England Assembly spent several days wrangling over freemasonry three years ago.

Many leading churchmen are Masons. The assembly held that the movement is not antagonistic to the church.

Minister Scores Failure Of Some To Recognize God

Commonly in life "we are walled off from the God who saves" and it doesn't seem to matter, the Rev. Murdo Nicolson, of Fairview Presbyterian church, Vancouver, said last night in an address to a non-denominational congregation at St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Mr. Nicolson, speaking in the third service during "The Week of Prayer," said that people are "too comfortable, too sinful or too stupid to bother."

"But the day does come when this separation from God is apparent to us as the most desperate thing and we are stranded travellers dying of thirst."

"Then it is," he said, "that the Church has the supreme duty of telling simply that the door in that wall is Jesus Christ. This is greatest word that the Church has to proclaim."

Assisting ministers in last evening's well-attended gathering were Rev. Dr. E. A. Wright, Rev. H. O. Olsen and Major W. C. Poulton.

WOMEN EAT TOO MUCH and smoke too little, says pipe-smoking Mrs. Marg Jackson, who recently marked her 99th birthday at Kelvin, Man. Mrs. Jackson, mother of 15, credits her long life to a careful diet of two meals a day and at least four pipefuls of tobacco.
