Graft Picture Melodramatic

A dramatic picture between greed and honesty forms the theme of "The Racket," a timely melodrama, showing this Friday and Saturday at Totem Theatre here. It spotlights the alliance between organized crime and crooked politicians in the United States and the campaign to bring it under control.

Robert Mitchum is cast as a square-shooting police captain who bitterly resents the political influence and immunity from arrest of Robert Ryan, prominent gangster in a big eastern city. Elizabeth Scott plays the part of a night club queen.

When Ryan has an informer brutally murdered in Mitchum's district the police officer sees a chance to bring the gangster to justice. By cleverly playing off one faction against the other among the city's criminal leaders, Mitchum attains his end in a thrill-packed climax which makes the film one of the season's most exciting screen dramas.

Other prominent members of the cast are William Talman as an honest patrolman and Ray Collins as a crooked politician.

Mrs. Edward Clapp left by air yesterday for a week's visit in Seattle with her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hawkins.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Sometimes Bad Bidding Isn't Punished

Bad bidding it not always punished. Miss Brash was about a king short for her second round bid of two no trump. Mr. Champion, who never takes into consideration the bidding peculiarities of his partner, made the normally justifiable jump to a small slam—off the ace and king of spades.

But Mr. Abel couldn't tell his side was in a position to win the first two tricks. He opened the jack of clubs and Mr. Champion won with dummy's king. He played the four from his own hand hoping Mr. Abel would miss the deuce and think Mrs. Keen had it and was starting an echo.

Even with the temporary reprieve offered by the club opening, Mr. Champion had no place to get rid of two spades. There was only one hope, a squeeze, and to bring this off he had to lose one trick first. It was a long shot but the only hope.

He entered dummy with the ace of hearts and returned a spade. Mrs. Keen played low and the queen lost to Mr. Abel's ace. Mr. Abel simply could not believe that Mr. Champion would make this play unless he had both king and queen of spades and he led back another club. So far, so good.

After winning with the king of clubs Mr. Champion paused to take stock. It was obvious that Mrs. Keen held the other top spade. Suppose she also held her side's only diamond stopper? Then she would have to hold four diamonds and the king of spades—five cards in all.

Mr. Champion could win five heart tricks, the queen of clubs, and these added to the spade trick and the two club tricks already played made a total of nine. In other words, he could get Mrs. Keen down to four cards without losing the lead again. That was one less than she needed to hold.

So five hearts and the queen of clubs were cashed. In dummy, Mr. Champion saved four diamonds, in his own hand, two diamonds and two spades. At the ninth trick Mrs. Keen was squeezed. She had to retain the king of spades and therefore discarded a diamond. Mr. Champion won the rest in the diamond suit.

Texan Story Actionful

Texas in the turbulent era of 1845, and the deadly conflict between those who favored annexation to the United States and the ardent supporters of an independent republic, form the surging theme for "Lone Star," which opens tonight for three days at the Capitol Theatre with Clark Gable, Ava Gardner and Broderick Crawford in the leading roles.

Two-fisted action and vigorous drama fills the story as the adventurous Gable is sent by President Andrew Jackson to the beloved Texan patriot, Sam Houston, to intercede on behalf of annexation, through the ambush by hostile Comanche Indians and on to the climax when Broderick Crawford, bitter opponent of annexation and sworn enemy of Gable, tries to prevent the Senate and convening, a bloody battle ensuing.

Enmity of the two men is heightened by their rivalry for the love of Ava Gardner, spirited newspaper owner who is as ardent in her support of Texan independence as she is to tame. Finally, however, her integrity and courage turn the tide in favor of annexation.

Lionel Barrymore plays the part of Andrew Jackson with Moroni Olsen as the valiant Sam Houston. Beulah Bondi, veteran William Farnum and Minnie Gryan have other important parts.
