Mr. Masters Uses Precise Strategy in Unusual Play

Mr. Masters selected for his opening lead the one card which would give him the best chance to defeat the opposing contract.

The bidding of Mr. Abel and Mr. Champion had sounded strong enough to indicate they held between them all the honor cards except those held by Mr. Masters himself.

Furthermore, it was beyond the bounds of reason to think Mr. Abel had a loser in any side suit. In other words, his only possible losers were in the trump suit, hearts.

The opening lead Mr. Masters made would go against the grain of many players and yet it was perfectly logical. He laid down the ace of hearts. He then promptly followed up with the

How would you have figured 2 H this if you had been in Mr. 50 Abel's place? Of course, if a plain suit had been opened, most players would lead the .711/2 jack of hearts from the closed .341/4 hand at trick two and duck in dummy if the hand on their left played low.

Or, if second hand went in with the ace of hearts, they would win the return, lay down the 10 of hearts and let it ride if not covered. That would be the best percentage play. But "normal" tactics went out the window when Mr. Masters .331/2 led the ace and then the deuce of trumps. Would anyone in his right mind lead from the ace- O queen of trumps? Mr. Abel thought not. Believing he had got a lucky break and Mr. Meek had started with queen doubleton in hearts, he went in with dummy's king at trick two. He was stunned when Mr. Meek showed out. He had reasoned exactly as

Mr. Masters had hoped he would. And Mr. Masters had risked nothing. If, after laying down the age of hearts, the king had not shown up in dummy, he would have shifted to another uit. His queen of hearts would NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) __ then have been certain to win
