Young Canada Book Week Brings Wide Interest in Contest Here

By SHIRLEY YULE

Young Canada Book Week opens tomorrow, and in Prince Rupert dozens of youngsters already have entered a local book contest at the Prince Rupert Public Library.

Young Canada Book Week is staged throughout Canada every year to arouse interest in good literature for boys and girls and to stimulate pleasure in reading.

The week is also aimed at parents, to make them more aware of the fine children's books available today and to remind them of the importance of a child's contact with good books.

And in the Prince Rupert library, there are good books for children.

In the juvenile section of the library in the Civic Centre there are books with such intriguing titles as "Pong Choolie—You Rascal!", "The Children of Blowy Tump," "Grania of Castle O'Hara" as well as old favorites like the Bobsey Twin series, the Katy books, Doctor Doolittle stories, and classics like "Pinocchio" and "Tom Brown's School Days."

There are well illustrated story books for the youngest readers, and interesting 'how-to-do-it' simple crafts. Also available are informative books such as "Your Telephone and How it Works," which outlines the operation of the telephone in language any child can understand.

In the section for older children there are the ever-popular Rudyard Kipling stories, the Montgomery series on Anne and her friends which young girls have loved for years, Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women," "Little Men" and "Joe's Boys," career stories and many more.

The Prince Rupert library is always well-patronized by children of all ages. Youngsters swarm into the building in the afternoons, after school, and perch all over the room with their little noses in books.

Their numbers have increased somewhat since the contest opened and the Librarian, Miss May MacDonald and her assistant, Mrs. D. R. Barclay, have been kept busy, checking out books, receiving the youngsters' entry forms and handing out the bright book marks which this year are being given to all children entering the contest.

Parent-Teacher Associations in the city are working with the library board in staging this year's contest, in which the youngsters fill in a form on the book they have read, describing the character they like best and why.

The contest was scheduled to close today, and winners will be announced at the end of Book Week.

Labor Council May Assist Dental Clinic

Discussion on financing of the Prince Rupert Dental Clinic highlighted this week's meeting of the Rupert Trades and Labor Council.

Following a report by R. G. Moore, teachers' representative, on the poor financial position of the clinic, the labor council urged that all local associations be approached for financial aid to the clinic.

The council made tentative plans for a contribution to the clinic, if the clinic will approach other organizations for similar aid.

The council also approved a grant of $10 to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, now marking National Blind Week.

It was also decided to investigate the case of Jack Parker, who lost his cabin and personal effects in a fire at Rainbow Lake recently. The council will give him assistance if necessary.

Winding up the session was a report by Secretary E. A. Evans on the British Columbia Trade Union Congress convention in Vancouver last month, which he attended.

Xmas Banquet For "Over 70's" Set Dec. 17

Plans for the annual Christmas dinner for this city's senior citizens were discussed at a meeting of the Women's Co-ordinating Council in the Civic Centre.

The banquet, staged annually by the council for people over 70 years of age, will be held this year December 17 in the United Church hall.

Committees were appointed for the affair and it was reported that transportation would be provided for anyone requiring it.

Research Group To Speak Here Next Thursday

A report on the work of the fisheries biological station at Nanaimo will be given at a public meeting here next Thursday night.

The fisheries research board and the University of British Columbia extension department are co-sponsoring the session which will include a film on commercial trawling methods, and talks by Dr. R. E. Forester, in charge of the entire salmon program at the Nanaimo station, Dr. K. S. Ketchen, in charge of the flat fish or beam trawl investigation for the station, and A. V. Hill of the extension department.

Dr. Ketchen has done considerable research on the life cycle of sole in Hecate Straits. The meeting, being staged for the benefit of local fishermen and others in the fish industry, will be held in the Legion auditorium.

Ken Harding, manager of the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Cooperative, is a member of the fisheries research board which also includes nine university professors, two government representatives and two industrial representatives on each coast. R. E. Walker of B.C. Packers at Vancouver is the other Pacific Coast industrial representative.

Mr. Walker, who came here from Ontario where he was engaged in landscaping work. He had taught in B.C. schools formerly.

Some 18 students have joined the club and already have prepared several flower beds for planting.

They are working from a model of the school and its grounds, planning their gardening to fit in with the natural landscaping of the school grounds.

Charles Birthday Party

Prince Charles, aged heir to the Throne, celebrated his fifth birthday today... party without a birthday cake and without parents to help him.

The board approved a request from Mrs. J. Snellman, newly-elected school representative at Port Essington, for playground improvements, at a total cost of $90. She asked for replacement of a leaking water pipeline bordering the school grounds and a gravel fill to repair damage done by the leak.

The board also agreed to purchase another record player for Borden Street School and a new record player to replace the old one at Booth Memorial High. They also approved purchase of 150 chairs for Booth High.

Board Grants Teacher's Request

Purchase of equipment and repairs at several schools in the district have been approved by the board of school trustees of District 52.
