Fishermen Need Work Not Relief

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Work projects rather than relief gifts were suggested here by two men familiar with conditions in the western Alaska fishing season disaster area.

The two are Jim Downey of the Bering Sea Fishermen's Union, and the Rev. Father George S. Endal, Jesuit priest whose headquarters are at Dillingham.

"A diligent inquiry reveals there is an immediate need for money and food in many instances in Ilamna and the Nushagak areas," Father Endal told the Anchorage Times.

"The instances of need," he continued, "will multiply with passing time." He said that because 50 and 75 per cent of the people there have no credit rating at stores, many went into winter with abnormally small grubstakes.

To relieve the situation, he said, work is urgently needed and preferred to outright relief if any feasible project can be found.

Downey said other areas needing aid include Kvichak and Naknek on Kvichak Bay; To-giak Ugasik and Egegik. The latter two towns are on Alaska peninsula.

Hooper Bay cannery workers on the Bering Sea coast also were "hit exceptionally hard by unemployment in all canneries last summer," Father Endal said, "but we have no information concerning present conditions."

CYD CHARISSE has been sitting pretty ever since it was discovered that she is not only glamorous but a tremendous hit as Fred Astaire's dancing partner in the MGM Technicolor film "The Band Wagon," with songs by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz. The musical is currently running at the Capitol Theatre.

Pre-Construction Survey Completed For Wharf

Pre-construction surveys by federal Department of Public Works engineers indicate that Vancouver's new False Creek fishermen's wharf will cost between $800,000 and $900,000 to complete.

This is reported by Harold Christenson, secretary of the Fishing Vessel Owners Association of B.C., the organization that has spearheaded the campaign, following progress conferences with B.C. public works officials.

Public works engineers have completed soundings of the False Creek basin fronting the south shore wharf site east of Burrard Bridge, to determine costs of dredging.

These soundings indicate that to deepen the basin to allow an average clearance of 11 feet at low water, removal of some 200,000 yards of material will be required, Mr. Christenson reports.

Plans now being drawn call for wharf installations to provide accommodation for approximately 200 fishing vessels.

These facilities will include six floats with a maximum length of 500 feet, four equipment storage buildings 40 feet by 80 feet divided into individual lockers, adjoining open-air black-topped working areas, and an administration office.

Rhee Urges "Stand Firm" Korea Policy

SEOUL — President Syngman Rhee said today that "if we stand firm" the Communists "will come to terms in Korea."

The fiery South Korean president predicted the Communists would accept a proposal to withdraw Chinese troops from North Korea and all Allied forces from the south, "because that would save the Communists' face."

"If this happens," Rhee added in an interview, "the North Korean Communists would flee. They would have to."

"All we have to do is stand firm." Rhee did not specify what he means by standing firm, but implied it involved the threat of force if no agreement were reached.

Discarded Ace Makes Slam Contract Possible

Miss Brash considers it a personal affront for her right-hand opponent to put in a pre-emptive bid. Far from keeping her out of the bidding, this usually goads her even higher than she would normally bid. When she jumped into a highly speculative six no trump bid in today's deal, Mr. Heinsite screamed as if he'd been stabbed.

"Don't forget," he said, as he laid down the dummy, "my four diamond bid was based on your having a big hand. Your double was forcing me to bid at the three level, vulnerable."

"I've got a big hand," Miss Brash replied, "and don't start yelling until you're hurt." This turned out to be sound advice as Miss Brash won 12 tricks on the hand. The 10 of diamonds was opened and she won and cashed her three top cards in that suit. Mr. New discarded two small clubs.

Next she entered dummy with the king of clubs, on which Mr. Abel signalled violently with the jack of spades. She cashed the jack of diamonds and sluffed a club from her hand. Here Mr. New dropped a spade.

On came the last diamond and Mr. New let go another spade. At this point Miss Brash went into a long—and fruitful—study.

Even if the king of hearts were right and the suit broke 3-3, there would be no easy way to get to dummy to cash the fourth heart. The queen of spades was the only possible entry. But if Miss Brash led the ace and another spade after the heart suit was cleared, Mr. Abel would win and cash the rest of his spades. If she underled the ace of spades, Mr. Abel would win and fire a spade right back to the blank ace. On this variation, Miss Brash would have to concede a club trick to Mr. New at the end.

Miss Brash found the answer. On dummy's last diamond, she discarded the ace of spades. Next came the queen of hearts, covered by the king and won by the ace. After cashing the jack and 10 of hearts, Miss Brash simply led a spade toward the queen. Mr. Abel won with the king and, having nothing left but spades, had to put dummy in to cash the good heart.

At the start Mr. Heinsite had feared the hand was too high. Typically, he now took the opposite tack. "Maybe you can make seven," he said, "if you don't discard that ace of spades."

Miss Brash looked at him pityingly. "By a throw-in play, no doubt," she retorted.
