U.S. May Call Fathers For Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Defense Department calculates that the armed forces cannot be maintained at their present size for much longer without drafting fathers or other groups now exempt.

This developed during testimony by Defense Secretary Charles Wilson at a Senate appropriations sub-committee's hearings on the military budget.

Wilson read a statement from John Hannah, assistant secretary of defense for manpower and personnel, that at the present rate of inductions, the armed services will exhaust their military manpower pool within 30 months.

Hannah's statement said that "we have been putting men into uniform faster than the young men are turning 18."

Hannah said the armed forces, at their present size, requires an annual intake of 1,000,000 men. At the same time the number of men reaching the minimum age for military service and meeting minimum standards, is 850,000 a year.

D. M. JOHNSON, (right) permanent Canadian representative to the United Nations, presents a cheque for $800,000 to the UN Secretary-General, Dag Hammarskjöld in New York. The cheque represents Canada's contribution to the UN's expanded program of technical assistance for 1953. At the third technical assistance conference last February, Canada pledged a minimum of $750,000 provided the total contributions reached $20,000,000, plus proportionate increases up to $350,000 if the total contributions reached the $25,000,000 target.

Switzerland May Construct Atomic Pile of Its Own

BERN (Reuters) — Switzerland, watching the success already achieved in the United States and Britain in experimental work for the application of atomic energy for power and heating purposes, is considering the construction of an atomic pile of its own.

A decision is expected to be reached this year by the Swiss atomic commission.

Although Switzerland possesses no uranium ore, the material used to produce a nuclear chain reaction, Swiss nuclear scientists have been studying, both theoretically and experimentally, the fundamental problems raised by the industrial use of atomic energy.

Extensive research work has been undertaken by Swiss university institutes as well as by certain branches of Swiss industry.

The Swiss atomic commission, which was set up in 1946, has organized several teams of research workers who have made valuable progress.

The decision by the European council for nuclear research to construct a nuclear laboratory in Geneva will also prove of great use to the Swiss scientists in their research work.

"Trick Play" Fan Goes
Down With Ice Cold Hand

Mr. Muzzy's idea of a real victory is a game or slam hand which he can lay down right after the opening lead. Mr. Heinsite's thinking is just the opposite. I have seen him jeopardize an ice-cold contract that he might develop a squeeze, an end play or some other coup.

The two schools of thought tangled in today's deal. Against the contract of two spades, Mr. Dale led the six of diamonds. Dummy ducked and Mr. Meek won with the queen.

A diamond return seemed dangerous as Mr. Heinsite might have the jack and another one left, so Mr. Meek played the ace, then the 10 of clubs.

Mr. Heinsite took the second club with the king and paused to play his play. He planned it very well. Since one spade trick had to be lost in any case, he cashed the ace of spades first, then went to the board with the ace of diamonds and led another spade. Mr. Meek winning with the king.

Out came the king of diamonds and after a long trance Mr. Heinsite dropped the four of hearts. He then looked up with an excited gleam in his eye. He felt sure he had made a fine play. Any lead that Mr. Meek made now was going to lose a trick for the defenders.

If another diamond was led, Mr. Heinsite would discard his last heart and when Mr. Dale ruffed with the jack of spades, the jack of clubs would be discarded from dummy. After that only one more trick, a club, would have to be lost.

A heart return would make dummy's king good for a trick. Actually, Mr. Meek led a diamond and the play went as outlined.

"That," said Mr. Heinsite proudly, "is one of the finest hands I ever played."

"Did we make it?" asked Mr. Muzzy, frowning.

"No, we were down one, but on any other line of play we would have been down two."

Mr. Muzzy shrugged. He found it hard to believe his partner's elation was on the level.

"Ring up that tremendous
