

Prince Rupert Women Shown Latest Winter Fashions at Legion Show

'Medium' Skirt Lengths, Stoles, Mink Tails, New Style Features

By SHIRLEY YULE

A "happy medium" in skirt lengths and a wide diversity of styles designed to flatter and please every woman highlighted last night's Fall Fashion Show presented by the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion.

The Legion auditorium was crowded with more than 250 women who O-ed and ah-ed at the many new and exciting styles in clothes ranging from practical rainwear, especially suited to Prince Rupert weather, to lovely cocktail gowns.

Perhaps outstanding in the rainwear line was a prettily-feminine but highly-practical reversible coat, soft grey outside and gay red and grey checks inside, with the check repeated on the wide turn-back cuffs and on a tiny off-the-face-matching hat. It was a jaunty little coat in the full swinging fashion so popular this year.

In the sportswear field, there were suits, smart skirt and jacket combinations and pretty wool dresses, all casual but lovely. One outstanding ensemble comprised a scarlet blazer, cut on straight, trim lines and practical for wear with any skirt or slacks. It was worn with a pretty all-round pleated skirt in the McRae tartan, with scarlet French braid, another popular fashion note this year.

Pleated Skirt

Another highnote was a dress of soft grey jersey with a clinging all-round pleated skirt, smartly set shoulders and attractive bodice interest in the clever design, worn with pretty paddy green accessories. Also featured in the casual dress line were two little gems of knitted dresses, one a two-piece number in the beautiful romantic new amethyst shade. Positively crease-resistant it can be worn with equal poise to office or tea-party. The other knitted suit, with gently flared skirt and slightly bloused top, was in tartan green.

A variety of smart fall suits, with lovely fur neckpieces and jackets also were shown. The suits were all slim of line, beautifully fitted, and in basic colors. One was of smart navy blue serge, another of softly tailored grey wool pic 'n' pic, both tops in fashion this season and every season. With one suit a three-skin choker of natural Canadian Fisher was worn, with another, a Stone Marten neckpiece of four furs in a natural shade.

Pretty Stoles

Ever-smart black and pretty stoles featured the group of afternoon and cocktail dresses shown. There were dresses of black wool, black French silk crepe, black taffeta, black net, in fact black everything, and stoles with dresses both bare-back and cover-up style. Outstanding in this group was a beautifully simple little dress of black French crepe with a low-cut neckline and striking horizontal tucks from throat to hemline.

Another smart little dress was of black wool jersey, very simply styled with peg-top sheath skirt, and dressed up with a grey and black fringed reversible stole.

Frock coats, important in the fashion field this year, also were shown. One was of silver grey with black velvet accents at throat and wrist and dropped shoulderline.

A glamorous cocktail dress of brown French crepe was another standout in the sophisticated line. It featured the new sleeves, cut deep, nearly to the waist, and a big perky bow of rainbow-hued shot taffeta at the neckline.

Metallic thread and rhinestones were used generously for trim on dresses, hats and veils in the entire afternoon, cocktail and evening dress line.

Coats Bright, Full

Bright colors and full, sweeping lines featured the showing of coats. There wasn't a fitted coat in the show. Reds, browns and greys were the dominant colors.

One of the smartest of the coats was a dashing model in charcoal and oxford grey, featuring full sleeves, full back, stand-up collar and sweeping cuffs, but really setting the pace in the coat field was a beauty in red mohair, a full swinging coat featuring attached scarf tipped with pretty, soft mink tails, a popular trim on everything this season.

Climaxing the show was a bridal party, with the bride in traditional white lace, and her attendants in primrose yellow and blue.

Bridal Party

Donna Macarthur was the charming bride in a gown of lace, featuring Peter Pan collar edged with seed pearls and net yoke, and full skirt of lace, its scalloped edges opening down the front over an under-panel of accordion-pleated nylon net. A bandeau of dainty white flowers trimmed the Juliet cap which held her finger-tip length veil of silk-embroidered net.

Miss Pat Mitchell was one attendant, wearing a pretty frock of blue net featuring bands of lace, and set off with a chapel veil of matching blue on a band of pink and blue-net.

Lois Good was the second attendant in an ankle-length frock of primrose yellow net over taffeta, in the strapless style, with a net stole. She also wore a chapel veil of matching net with a head band of yellow and white flowers.

Mr. Dyke McMillan, tenor, sang "Because" while the bridal party was on stage, and Mrs. Joanne Cleo, soprano, sang during a brief intermission.

Accompanying the two vocalists, and providing background music throughout the show was Mrs. J. S. Black of the Legion W.A. The charming commentator, dressed in another "model" evening frock of red net over taffeta with velvet and floral accents, was Mrs. J. F. Denning. Models included, besides the bridal party, Marial Gagnon, May Wolstenholms, Mary Balingier, Lois Good, Jean Gordon, Evelyn Antilla, Pearl Gillis, Ruby Morrison, Bertha Boulton, Iona Campagnolo, Geraldine Holbrook and Merle Stegavik.

Mrs. J. Stromdahl and Mrs. H. Berg directed the affair, dressing the models, and were presented with sprays of roses by the Legion W.A. Mrs. Denning also received a gift from Mrs. Stromdahl.

The door prize went to Mrs. N. A. Beketov.

FIVE NEW ITEMS OF CLOTHING, in addition to improvements in materials and minor tailoring modifications to four others, have been authorized for nursing sisters of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. Above, looking smart and trim in three patterns of dress, are nursing sisters of the Kingston Military Hospital. Left to right, Lt. (N/S) O. Y. Hannas, of Star, Alta., in the modified winter service suit; Lt. (N/S) M. M. Hunter, of Ninette, Man., in the modified mess dress; and Lt. (N/S) A. E. Parker, of Plaster Rock, N.B., in the new summer service suit of khaki wool rayon.

Chlorinated Water Irks Socreds' Mrs. Arsens

By J. K. NESBITT
VICTORIA.—Social Credit's Mrs. Arsens, pert in a new hair-do on her golden brown tresses and a corsage of sweet peas to light up the pink of her cheeks, made the most provocative speech of the session. You either agreed with Mrs. Arsens or thought her plum nuts.

Here, we thought chlorination of water had been accepted by the people. Yet Mrs. Arsens poked and prodded at that old sore until we're all liable to be fighting among ourselves again about chlorinated water.

Why, Mr. Speaker, said Mrs. Arsens, heaving with indignation, to chlorinate water in our beautiful city of Victoria is a sin, it's against the principles of democracy, Mr. Speaker!

If we are to believe Mrs. Arsens, chlorinated water is sending people to hospitals and insane asylums and, if water is fluoridated, we're all liable to end up in bed, or as raving lunatics behind bars. Mrs. Arsens didn't say whether chlorination and fluoridation create jaundice.

GARBAGE IDEA

And we heard about garbage from Mrs. Arsens. Everybody, said Mrs. Arsens, should be compelled to wrap their garbage into separate bundles—tin cans, which you'll be forced to flatten, papers, and waste foods.

The waste foods, she said, should be taken to the parks and dug in as fertilizer. Now, this is a fine idea, waste food being an excellent fertilizer. But the spectacle of thousands, the law whipping them on, trudging to the parks and digging in their garbage to make the grass and the flowers bloom is too stupendous to grasp.

Mrs. Arsens didn't say what we'll be forced to do with the flattened tin cans, and the old papers.

And, being a restaurant operator, Mrs. Arsens put in a plug for eating-out. She said: "I am not recommending wine. If big, raw-boned, barrel-jawed Liberal Gordon Gibson of Lillooet ever gets defeated and wants a job, he'd make a good barker on a sightseeing bus. He gave maps of Lillooet riding to every MLA. Then proceeded to tell them of the scenic beauties from Horseshoe Bay to Lillooet, while at the same time making a strong plea for a road."
