News of the District

TERRACE TOPICS

Boy Scouts Harvey Kerr, Terry Whitfield and Douglas Taylor of Vanderhoof spent a couple of days in Prince George at the end of last wek taking special training in Scout leadership.

Rt. Rev. James B. Gibson, D.D., Bishop of Caledonia, was here from Prince Rupert and conducted services at Nechako and Fort Fraser as well as here. Boy Scouts paraded to Sunday night service in Vanderhoof.

Funeral service was held Saturday afternoon from the Anglican Church here for Mrs. Frank Gaen who pased away at St. John's Hospital on Thursday.

Robert Carter has taken over duties as personnel manager in the Vanderhoof office of Mannix Limited, contractors for the Alcan project.

F. V. Hutton, superintendent of the Prince George Experimental Station, was a visitor in this district this wek. At Prairiedale on Monday he gave an addres on gardening and general horticulture.

Prince George NOTES

Social Credit organization started here last week with the visit of Peer Paynter of Vancouver, British Columbia organizer, and Orvis Kennedy, Alberta M.P. and national Social Credit manager. There was a dinner and general meeting.

A site on Salmon River, about fifteen miles north of Prince George, may be selected by Portland interests as location for a $250,000 super-modern motel. Roy A. Hurst and Adolf Domke, who operate a string of holiday resorts in Washington and Oregon, were here last week-end looking into the project. Mr. Hurst left for Prince George enroute to Kitimat to visit with a brother.

TRAPPED INFANT

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — A call to the home of W. J. Fenton wound up a busy day recently for Lindsay firefighters. At the house the fire chief had to climb a ladder to the bathroom window to bring out Fenton's two-year-old daughter, who had locked herself in.

Vanderhoof Briefs

C. W. Alger has resigned as secretary of the Terrace-Hazelton school district. Mrs. Alger has been taken south on account of illness and Mr. Alger will follow.

A Finnish couple, Liisa Tapaninen and Eki Simila, have been married here. The groom, who arrived in the district in 1950, is employed by Columbia Cellulose. The bride arived recently from the Old Country.

Central B. C. Airways has resumed scheduled flights through Terrace between Prince Rupert and Prince George. Harry Taylor is pilot of the Anson which flies eastward to Prince George and Ray Oliver is pilot of the amphibian which runs to Prince Rupert. Pilot Bill Cooper expects to be resuming the Kitimat-Kemano run shortly.

A huge trailer of fifty ton capacity has been brought to this district by Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., for use in connection with its operations. Towed by a truck, it will move tools and heavy equipment from place to place as required.

The board of village commissioners has under consideration a number of new subdivisions outside the present limits of the municipality but within the proposed extension area. The subdivisions have ben laid out by Fred Nash, B.C.L.S.

Improvements are being carried out at the Civic Centre here including the installation of new washrooms for men and women. The Civic Centre here has taken on a new lease of life.

Emil Haugland, chief commissioner of the village, is expected home soon from Prince Rupert General Hospital where he has been undergoing skin grafting following recent blood poisoning.

If You Do Not Pay Your News Subscription, the Boy Loses

Subscribers of the Daily News who receive their papers by carrier boys are reminded that these boys—our little merchants—are charged for every paper they take out. If you are receiving the paper and are delinquent, the boy has to finance you. This is a reminder to people who may be in arrears, whether it is their custom to pay the boy or pay at the office. It is not the office that loses if you fail to pay. It is the boy. We hope this reminder will expedite the payment by those who may have fallen behind. Prompt payment of your newspaper subscription is a legitimate obligation. The fact that your creditor is one of our boys or girls should make the respecting of the obligation the more desirable.

No Such Thing as a "Standard" Hand When Mr. Muzzy Disarranges His Cards

That sterling team composed of Mr. Champion, Mrs. Keen, Mr. Dale and Mr. Muzzy was discussing this hand from their match against a team from the Uptown Club.

"There's nothing to this one," Mr. Champion remarked. "Undoubtedly we halved it. I hate a hand like this. There is absolutely no way to go wrong on it. Anybody would reach the obvious contract of four spades, and when his side does, he will win exactly 10 tricks against reasonable defense. There's no way to go set and there's no way to make an extra trick—unless the defense falls flat on its face."

"I didn't think it was such a 'standard' hand when it was played at our table," said Mr. Dale.

"Nuts," Mr. Champion replied. "Mr. South opened his singleton diamond and his partner won and led back a high diamond. I ruffed but South overruffed and got out with a trump. Later I had to lose a heart trick to the king. How can they get more—or less—than a spade, a heart and a diamond?"

"Well, if you'll be quiet a minute," said Mr. Dale, "I'll tell you what happened at our table. We were defending against the same contract, four spades, and . . ."

Mr. Champion cut in. "I suppose you're going to tell me we lost this match. Muzzy probably opened the king of spades or revoked or something. Tell me the bad news. Did they make five or six-odd against you?"

"WE SET 'EM"

"They made three-odd," replied Mr. Dale. "We set 'em a trick."

Mr. Champion was pleased to learn his team had won the match but he couldn't believe it was due to his teammates' defensive skill. "What happened?" he asked. "Did Mr. East get his cards mixed up?"

"Somebody did," Mr. Dale answered, "but it wasn't Mr. East. It was Muzzy. He had a card out of place and the results were devastating."

See tomorrow's column for Mr. Muzzy's defense on this deal.

Terrace Guide, Scout Rally

TERRACE.—Girl Guides and Boy Scouts had a good attendance of parents and friends for their annual rally at the Civic Centre Friday evening.

D. S. Collins, master of ceremonies, gave a talk on "Thinking Day," followed by raising of the flag and the group flag singing of "O Canada."

Cubmaster Frank Creighton gave an explanation, followed by a demonstration, of the snake dance by the First Terrace Cub pack.

Cubmaster Armand Bissonnette discoursed on the meaning of Cubbing.

The Second Terrace Cub pack gave the Cub Law and the Grand Howl followed by a number of games.

Mrs. B. Giraud explained that Brownies were the necessary stepping stones to the Guides, after which her group of Brownies played singing games around the toadstool.

Captain Gladys Clifford's Girl Guides sang their action songs around the campfire.

Leader R. Edwards' Scouts gave a demonstration of first aid and signalling with flags. There followed an amusing skit on what a Scout should carry in his kit bag on a hike.

Each group had its own closing ceremonies—Guides, Taps; Cubs, Grand Howl; Brownies, Taps; Scouts, Their Prayer.

"God Save the Queen" was followed by lowering of the flag and the various flags being returned to their own groups. Refreshments were served.

The five groups on the floor were:

1. Brownies, Tawny Oil Mrs. B. Giraud. Helpers—Mrs. Edmonds and Mrs. Kenyon.
2. Guides, Captain Mrs. Gladys Clifford. Helpers—Mrs. Elsie Smith, Mrs. Brandis.
3. First Terrace Cub Pack, Cubmaster Frank Creighton. Helper—H. M. Harper.
4. Second Terrace Cub Pack, Cubmaster Armand Bissonnette.
5. First Terrace Scouts, Scout Leader R. Edwards.

WALTER PIDGEON AS BULLDOG DRUMMOND

Another tense and exciting picture of the Bulldog Drummond series comes to the Totem Theatre here this Friday and Saturday in "Calling Bulldog Drummond," with Walter Pidgeon in the title role.

Set in the colorful Soho area of London, the picture was made in England and tells the story of battle to the death between a master detective and a master mind who operates a syndicate of modern military-trained criminals who have baffled Scotland Yard.

Aiding Pidgeon in his formidable task of tracing down the crooks is Margaret Leighton, brilliant star of British stage and screen.

Novel highlight of the suspenseful film is the use by the criminals of walkie-talkie and short wave and radar equipment which enables them to execute a series of swift and carefully planned raids.

The background is authentic and there are many scenes of historic landmarks in the old city.
