Let's Help Our Children

IT'S OUR DUTY as well as a privilege to help the children in our city. There are dozens of service clubs and other organizations throughout the world that spend many hours and dollars to see that our children have fun and games.

The Kinsmen Club of Prince Rupert during the past eight years has raised nearly $20,000 to provide a summer camp for our children.

Their cause is a good one that deserves the support of every citizen.

This Saturday, the Kinsmen are staging their annual 24th of May celebrations. The money derived from this event will be spent on the kiddies' camp, built and maintained by the Kinsmen near Terrace.

Let's all get behind this club. Support them, buy a ticket, even if you don't attend the celebrations.

Remember the proceeds are used to help those kiddies whose parents cannot afford to send them to summer playgrounds.

Besides this yearly affair, the Kinsmen hold annual Christmas and Hallowe'en parties for our children.

Let's all help the Kinsmen help the kiddies.

No Room For Discrimination

TODAY is Citizenship Day in Canada, an event which is being celebrated for the third year. It is observed to remind us of the privileges and duties of Canadians.

Citizenship Day is also observed to welcome new citizens into our community and to show to prospective new citizens that we enjoy our freedoms and democracy.

In a news item yesterday, a leader in the community was quoted:

"We want to show our new citizens and future citizens that they are needed and wanted in our community." He went on to say further that "by showing these people they are a part of our community we can help to avoid discrimination."

While in Canada we see all groups of people engaged in the common effort of being good citizens, we cannot hide the fact that there are still minority groups, practically segregated from our community life.

Such conditions do not lead towards unity of a nation. On the contrary, such conditions are the wedges that can be used in attempts to split up our nation. These splits are often attempted right under our noses in our own communities.

With enough splitting, we could be torn assunder.

In order to strive for unity we must first face the facts that as people, one group is not superior to the other. Regardless of race, creed or religion—we are all Canadians and as such must be accepted with equal prestige in any Canadian community.

Let us remember this, not only today but from one Citizenship day to another.

As I See It

by Elmore
Philpott

Ottawa Final

OTTAWA: When the Prime Minister walked with me to the door of his office the other day, after an interview about which I have written previously, he said:

"You must have a very interesting life, Mr. Philpott."

I think he may have gleaned the rather mistaken impression that I am constantly travelling to foreign lands. Anyway, I know he was pleased by what I told him of our Canadian representatives abroad. It was that in the unpleasing countries I visited last year the Canadian official people struck me as the most fair minded and level headed of all the professional diplomatic crowd.

By that I mean that no matter where you go the Canadians seem to give you the least prejudiced reports on the background of the situation in which they are in. They do not seem to go off the deep end, or take sides in local causes or regional squabbles as some other nations' representatives seemed to me too much and too often to do.

I FOUND that true in Egypt, Pakistan, India and Yugoslavia, for instance. Yet in all those countries most foreign diplomats, and their staffs, were markedly partisan.

Take the touchy case of India and Pakistan—two new nations or reborn nations which had recently been fighting each other. Most of the foreigners I met out that way were either fervently pro-Pakistan or pro-India. But I did not find a single Canadian, in high office or more humble capacity, who took a slanted or even one-eyed point of view. All of them seemed to have the faculty to look all around the matter and to give you a fair and balanced sum-up.

NOW at the end of this brief look-see visit to Ottawa I see the other side of the coin. As a people w. Canadians are dependable, steady going, unenthusiastic and unostentatious. Nobody could call us fatheads, for as a nation we are certainly not stupid. But friendly critics might call us the flatheads without insulting us too much, for here we have a profound instinctive distrust of anything or any person too far out of line with the ordinary.

That seems to me the key to why our diplomats and other officials abroad are so fair minded and impartial. But it also seems to me the key to why our politics at Ottawa are duller, less spectacular than those of some other countries. We have few geniuses, few freaks.

There is such a broad basis of underlying agreement between all the parties that you just don't get the sparks which fly from the clash of flint against steel. We have no groups in parliament that are anywhere near as different as flint from steel.

THE FIERCE debate this year on NATO seems to me to have done a wonderful job of crystallizing support for Canada's foreign policy of 1952. Now everybody knows what is what and where we are really trying to go.

Even on the thorny and ticklish question of Germany I find a very wide basis of agreement amongst the Liberal, Conservative and CCF parties. I think that all the well informed MPs are alive to the danger of what a re-armed, aggressive Germany would mean, slam bang in the middle of Europe, and hence would much prefer some agreed solution which might transform Germany into what we might call a bigger Switzerland.

But the best informed are also aware that if we too readily swallowed the Russian offer for all foreigners to walk out of both east and west Germany—the net result might be a set-up for another Communist coup on the Czechoslovak model.

RE the re-armament program—the top men seem to have no acute worries over man-
