UPSIDE-DOWN SOPRANO CHALKS UP RECORD—At New York's Carnegie Hall the other day Washington State's soprano, Frances Yeend, chalked up a record of 150 appearances as soloist with 44 major U.S. symphony orchestras during the past eight seasons. This record is unsurpassed by any other vocal star and gives her the clear title as "the nation's No. 1 symphony vocalist," or so she claims. The blonde singer, who stands on her hands for several minutes each morning to tone up circulation and ward off colds, indulges in her favorite exercise alongside a stack of musical scores exceeding her own height, any one of which she is ready to sing at the drop of a note.

MURRAY HALBERG, lean 20-year-old New Zealand runner who is training in Auckland as a schoolteacher, is regarded as a leading contender for the mile championship at the British Empire Games at Vancouver this summer. He recently ran a mile in four minutes, 4.4 seconds. He will compete in the games against two other runners, world-famous John Landy of Australia and Roger Bannister, Britain's brightest hope. Halberg was crippled by an injury in a football game in 1950, but learned to walk again, and then to run. One arm was permanently damaged in the football accident.
