Top School Track Stars in Vancouver To Compete in "Little Empire Games"

VANCOUVER — More than 300 athletes will appear here today in a track and field extravaganza billed by boosters as the "little empire games."

The sixth annual Vancouver relays, which this year will play host to athletes from eight universities, 17 high schools and eight clubs from the United States and Canada, have a special significance as a preview of the big Commonwealth show here July 30 to Aug. 7.

Bill Parnell, Canada's premier distance runner and holder of the British Empire Games record for the mile, will be tuning up his try at Roger Bannister, the four-minute Briton who will compete in the games here.

Track and field officials slated to handle the games will also work the relays. Special arrangements have been made to use all the track and field timing and measuring devices that will be used at the games.

A star attraction will be Bob Richards of Long Beach, Calif., who has pole vaulted 15 feet or more 50 times, and who will also enter the high jump, broad jump, hurdles, discus, shotput, javelin and hop-step-and-jump.

BEST SINGLE EVENT

The best single event will probably be the open 100-yard dash. Entries have been attracted from five top colleges and clubs and are led by the University of British Columbia's Bob Hutchinson, who holds the B.C. record at 9.7. Bruce Springbett of Oregon, a Vancouver boy, has done it in 9.6.

The Canadian record in the 440 hurdles is held by England's Lord Burleigh with a time of 54.8. Last year Modress Peterson of the Seattle Track and Field Club raced the distance in 55.

He plans to break his own effort and Burleigh's record at the same time.

Entries for the relays include competitors from Oregon University, Seattle Pacific College, Pacific Lutheran College, and Fort Lewis army camp.

Other stars entering the relays include Emery Barnes of the University of Oregon, U.S. intercollegiate high jump champ.

Sugar Ray Denies "Coddling" Despite '44 Army Desertion

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators turned up evidence Friday that Sugar Ray Robinson, former middleweight boxing champion was charged with desertion by the army during the Second World War but was cleared.

Hunting for "coddling" of athletes by the army, the hearings by a House of Representatives armed service sub-committee wound up late Friday.

The most sensational disclosure was that of Robinson's ship-jumping when his boxing troupe was scheduled to go overseas in March of 1944.

Powell said that for a time Robinson was charged with desertion but that he was cleared by an army board and given an honorable discharge after he was found unsuitable for military duty for medical reasons.

Meanwhile in Vancouver Sugar Ray Robinson, former world welter and middleweight champion, claims he wasn't "coddled" during his Second World War stint with the United States air force.

Robinson is one of 10 athletes whose names are under study by an armed services committee in Washington. The committee is investigating charges that the men were allowed to spend most of their service time boxing or playing baseball.

"I'd rather have taken my chances with bullets than do what I did," Robinson said in an interview Friday. He is making a night club appearance here.

He said he was taken out of a military hospital in 1943 to go on an armed services boxing tour with Joe Louis. At the time he was awaiting discharge because of a bad left ear drum.

"I'd sure like to know what privileges they gave me by letting me box. We boxed exhibitions every day for eight months."

He got two ribs broken during the tour, "the only real injury I got in my fighting career."

"Besides, we were in four plane crack-ups."

CAHA Meeting To Discuss USSR's Big Win

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER — Echoes of the shot heard around the hockey world, Russia's defeat of Canada, will boom loud across the conference table here this week.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association opens here Sunday for a five-day stand.

And past president Doug Grimston of New Westminster predicts freely that the subject of Canada's defeat will get a good going over.

"Everybody thinks we, the CAHA laid an egg," he said in a telephone interview Friday. He referred to the decision to send the Toronto East York Lyndhursts to the championships in Stockholm.

Simon-pure amateurs in the strictest sense of the phrase, the East Yorks dropped a 7-2 decision to Moscow Dynamos in the feature match of the tournament.

The defeat gave Russia the Championship by one point. Canada had six wins and a loss, Russia six wins and a tie.

Sportswriters called the defeat "a national calamity, a national blunder" the team, bolstered by four ex-pros flown from Canada, was termed "dispirited and piece-meal."

Grimston said the meeting will hear, for the first time, a report from the CAHA president on the world tournament.

President W. A. Baldy George of Kemptville, Ont., will make his report at a dinner meeting Monday night.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

This Penalty Doubling Needed Some Insurance

Penalty doubles of game contracts at rubber bridge should be geared for a two-trick set. That is, you should have reasonable expectations of putting the contract down two.

This is a little insurance to take care of the not infrequent case where one of your expected winners is not a winner at all—owing to a surprise singleton or void in declarer's hand or dummy.

There were three good reasons why Mr. Muzzy should not have doubled the four spade contract in today's deal. First, he had too many of his partner's hearts, making a singleton or void in Mr. Masters' hand likely. Second, his opponents were sound bidders and Mr. Masters bows to no man in the play of a hand. And then there was the fact that a double would warn declarer of the bad spade distribution and thus "tell" him how to play to his best advantage.

MUZZY THROUGH

Miss Brash won the first trick with the king of hearts. She followed with the ace and instead of ruffing Mr. Masters discarded the trey of diamonds.

Another heart was led and this time Mr. Masters ruffed. He led a small spade to the queen. Now, as a safety measure against the probability that Mr. Muzzy had started with five spades, he abandoned the trump suit and started clubs.

Mr. Muzzy ruffed the third lead of clubs but now he was through. If he led his last heart, it could be ruffed with the seven of spades in dummy. Actually, he led the ten of diamonds. Mr. Masters won with the ace and was now in a position to pick up the rest of the trumps and spread the hand.

MASTERS' DOUBLE

Without the double, it is doubtful that Mr. Masters would have taken these precautions and if he had led a second round of trumps early in the hand, he would have lost the contract.

Note that Mr. Muzzy stood to gain practically nothing by his double. If he beat the contract a trick he would get 50 points. If he beat it doubled, he would get 100 points, a net gain of a measly 50 points. As it was, his opponent's gained 120 in trick points and an added 50 points for making the doubled contract. And there was also the danger that they would redouble, maybe even making an extra trick or two.

New Ruling In Force At Ball Park

A new ground rule was drawn up for Roosevelt Park by the executive of the Prince Rupert and District Baseball Association this week.

The new ruling covers the number of bases a player may take on an overthrow to first or third base. A line even with the fence and extending from the end of both dugouts, parallel to the home-to-first and home-to-third base lines will be marked this year.

An overthrow ball which lands between this line and the base line will be considered to be still in play, and a runner may take as many bases as he, or the base coach deems wise.

Should the overthrow ball cross the line, going away from the diamond, then the runner will be allowed one base only.

"For America" Group Formed To Fight Communism in U.S.

CHICAGO — A new organization called "for America" was founded Friday to "combat super-internationalism and communism."

The founders said the group is not a new political party but served notice that it will enter the fall election "to fight within both parties for congressmen and senators who have the same principles" as the organization.

Clarence E. Manion and Robert E. Wood were named co-chairmen. Wood headed the American First committee, which opposed U.S. participation in the Second World War until Pearl Harbor.

The new organization's declaration included such points as:

- "To save America, register."
- "To promote peace."
- "To oppose so-called proxy wars, or police actions."
- "To stop sending our American boys to fight all over the world without the consent of Congress."
- "To combat super-internationalism, one-worldism and communism."
- "To use every legitimate means to prevent squandering our money and resources."
