FIFTY WEST BERLIN motorcycle policemen form a human pyramid atop four motorbikes while training for a police show. All seem nonchalant. But somewhere in the pile there may well be one who wishes for dear life that he was an ordinary patrolman.

Doubt Story of Third Party Sought Kansas City Kidnap-Murder Mystery

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The FBI withheld a country-wide search for a mysterious ex-convict, Bobby Greenleaf, from the Kansas City Police from coast to coast on the lookout for a man who may hold the key to certain unanswered questions in the Bobby Greenleaf kidnap-killing.

RUPERT MAN BELIEVED DROWNED AT NANAIMO

NANAIMO, B.C. (C)—A 20-year-old fisherman from Prince Rupert is believed to have drowned in Commercial Inlet here Thursday.

Search started dragging operations after he was reported missing from the fishing boat Invercare. His name was Carl Austin Hall, described as the leader in the plot, and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, the divorcee who aided him.

Layoffs Seen Locally Due to Grain Market Lack

NO cause for alarm, no lack of grain handled expected due to the lack of world markets for Canadian wheat. Grain handlers down south this week expressed "alarm" over the wheat situation and a spokesman for the Vancouver and New Westminster local of the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Softdrink and Distillery Workers of America (CIO-CCL) said that 20 per cent of the local's grain workers have been laid off.

The spokesman said that the layoffs were due to lack of world markets for Canadian wheat that was causing grain to pile up in Vancouver and New Westminster elevators. Other workers such as longshoremen and trainmen are affected by falling wheat shipments.

Canadian wheat board officials in Vancouver declined to comment on the union statement. Here in Prince Rupert the Norwegian freighter Risenanger was scheduled to arrive today from Vancouver to take on a cargo of 2,700 long tons of wheat and the Taranger, also from Bergen, Norway is expected here on October 20 to load 7,000 long tons of wheat.

Mr. Mills said that the elevator began the month almost empty and that shipments of grain will be arranged to take care of any ships coming in during the month. The elevator will in all probability be full by the end of the month, he said.

Canada obliged the United Kingdom with large shipments of wheat at a lower price during and after the war in the hope that such a move would bring a better price when Britain showed signs of recovery. However, Britain has turned to Russia and other European countries where she can buy wheat at a considerably lower cost.

What's an Autoclave? Victoria Council Doesn't Know

VICTORIA (C)—Anybody who's asked for an autoclave is? The city council doesn't know what it is either and bought one for $275. In fact, more than the one they thought they had. Recommendation from the health department asked that a larger autoclave be authorized purchased for the sum of approximately $275.

The committee resolution passed without a word. Queried later, each alderman admitted he didn't know what it was and that maybe one of the others did.

delayed any country-wide search for Marsh pending clarification of inconsistencies in statements made by the pair now held in the kidnapping.

Under arrest in St. Louis are Carl Austin Hall, described as the leader in the plot, and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, the divorcee who aided him. Hall admitted kidnapping the six-year-old boy, son of multi-millionaire Robert G. Greenleaf, 71, burying the child's body after finding him dead and collecting the $600,000 ransom.

But he denied killing Bobby. He told officers he turned the boy over to Marsh on the day of the kidnapping and later found him shot to death in the basement of the Heady home in St. Joseph, Mo. He claims he hasn't seen Marsh since.

Some authorities have expressed doubt that Hall and Mrs. Heady had an accomplice. There has been some speculation that Marsh may be dead.

FILED WARRANT

The FBI has filed a fugitive warrant for the arrest of Marsh on a charge of murder. The capture of Marsh could answer these questions: Who actually killed Bobby Greenleaf? Why was he killed, even before ransom negotiations were well underway? What happened to $300,000 ransom money still missing?

Approximately $292,000 was recovered from a room in St. Louis. Hall has said he may have lost another bag of money while drunk.

Further doubt was cast on Mrs. Heady's story that she didn't realize she was participating in a kidnapping when she lured Bobby from his school on the pretext that she was his aunt and his mother had been taken ill.

The FBI said her fingerprints had been found on the ransom notes used during the kidnapping negotiations.

State Of Emergency Declared By Governor Of British Guiana

Britain Suspends Present Constitution

By The Canadian Press
 GEORGETOWN, British Guiana. — Governor Sir Alfred Savage today announced that this colony's six-month-old constitution will be suspended from today and proclaimed a state of emergency.

The governor, his authority backed by 620 British troops who arrived here Thursday, delivered a hard-hitting radio statement in which he accused government leaders of Communist affiliations.

They are being removed from posts which they took over when the People's Progressive party swept to a landslide victory in elections last April.

Savage declared attempts have been made to undermine loyalty to Britain by intimidation and other methods. He announced that as a precautionary measure, meetings have been banned and checks on road traffic instituted.

However, the governor said, "the intercolonial cricket match with Trinidad will begin this morning and will continue tomorrow, provided crowds disperse quickly to their homes after the match."

As he spoke, British troops patrolled the wide tree-lined streets of Georgetown, alert for any disturbances. One detachment of troops will proceed farther up the Demerara River today to guard the Canadian-owned bauxite mine at MacKenzie, 65 miles from here, supply source for the Aluminum Company of Canada.

Savage said in his address that he hopes "there will be as little interruption as possible in the normal life of the colony."

"Over recent months there has been a planned and continuous program of strengthening links with Communist countries, with a view to making British Guiana a servile state where the people are compelled, under intimidations, to give up those freedoms we all cherish," he said.

THREATENED APPEAL

The six ousted ministers, headed by Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan, had threatened to appeal to London, Washington and the United Nations.

A Colonial Office announcement in London today said the governor had been given emergency powers. The aircraft carrier Implacable sails tomorrow from Britain with 600 men of the famed Argyl and Sutherland Highlanders, battle-tested veterans of the Korea fighting.

Jagan had denounced the troop arrivals as a "show of force." He said he would go abroad for support of his party's demand for self-rule.

Allies Offer New Plan

By The Associated Press

PANMUNJOM. — The Allies today offered a compromise plan that could get explanations to reluctant prisoners-of-war started sooner.

The United Nations command said it is willing to work around the clock to cut the time of building temporary explanation centres for the Communists from seven to five days.

The Reds will use the centres to interview 22,600 Chinese and Koreans who have refused to return to communism.

The neutral nations repatriation commission, in a letter Thursday, indirectly accused the Allies of trying to stall the start of Red persuasion attempts in an effort to cut down the explanation period, which ends Christmas Eve.

Both sides built explanation facilities before the scheduled Sept. 26 starting date, but each rejected the other's construction.

The Reds said the UN-built centre was located so that Communist representatives would have to travel too close to stockades holding violently anti-Red POWs. The commission asked the UN to build a new one.

After hearing UN estimates of the time it would take—one week for the temporary facilities and four weeks for the permanent areas—the commission asked the Allies to finish it in four days or let the Reds do it.

Police Probe Disappearance Of Lytton Nurse

LYTTON, B.C. (C)—Investigation into the mysterious disappearance of Miss Susan Kelsey, middle-aged matron of St. Bartholomew's hospital here, is being continued, RCMP said Thursday.

A search of the hilly terrain near this Fraser Canyon town has failed to turn up any trace of the woman, who vanished Sept. 15.

Police now are attempting to contact relatives in Montreal and California in their efforts to locate her.

The 27-bed hospital closed down temporarily at the end of September because of a shortage of nurses.

Father to Hang For Son's Murder

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—Eric Kaipainen, a 31-year-old Finnish immigrant, Thursday night was convicted of the murder of his young son Sehpi last Nov. 28. He was sentenced to be hanged at the district jail Dec. 8.

Kaipainen was smiling slightly when the verdict was announced by the Supreme Court jury which deliberated for 35 minutes.

The youth's body was found in a steam bath building here with bullet wounds in the head and chest. Kaipainen lay near his child with a wound between the eyes. A 22-calibre rifle was nearby.

THE EXPRESSION, "packed like sardines," may lose its meaning altogether if the present scarcity of the tiny fish continues. At Eastport, Maine, thousands of small fish go to waste on dry land after being chased ashore in droves by rampaging whales. The Maine sardine industry could have made good use of this batch which covers many acres, as the season's pack to date is one of the smallest in history.

SOCREDS INTRODUCE NEW B.C. VOTING LEGISLATION

VICTORIA (C)—British Columbia's Social Credit government Thursday introduced legislation reducing the minimum age for voters from 21 years to 19 years.

The new Elections Act presented to the legislature also would throw out the alternative voting system.

Weatherman Pours Out More Rain, Less Sun in September

The weatherman wasn't very kind to Prince Rupert last month. He gave this city lower temperatures, less sunshine and more rain on more days than in August.

During the month of September there were 8.87 inches of rain registered here, spread over 23 days of the month. In August there were only 3.85 inches of rain on 16 days of the month.

Mean temperature last month was 53.3 degrees, with a high for the month of 67.8 degrees, registered September 3, and a low of 41 degrees, September 29 and 30. High point in August was 73.7 degrees, reached August 14.

Sunshine was meagre too last month in Prince Rupert. Old Sol blessed the city with only 63.2 hours of sunshine during the entire 30 days, compared to a total of 104.2 hours in August.

Figures for September of 1952 showed more of everything—more rain, more sunshine and higher temperatures. In September last year there were 13.36 inches of rain, 70.8 hours of sunshine, and a high temperature of 72.7 degrees, reached September 21.

Western Saga Ends in Alberta Foothills As Fugitive Cowboy Captured by Mounties

CALGARY (CP)—James Roselle came to the end of the outlaw trail Thursday night.

The 17-year-old fugitive from a horse-theft sentence was captured by waiting Mounties as he rode stealthily up to the Dick Gardner ranch west of Nanton, some 70 miles south of here, under cover of darkness. Police said he intended to "trade" his weary mount for a fresh one and then slip back into the safety of the hills.

In custody instead, he was to be brought to Calgary during the night.

The foothills of western Alberta have given him protection for the last month, since he escaped from the Bowden Institute, about 10 miles north of here. He was sentenced to a term in the correctional institution for youths after being convicted of horse theft.

When he escaped, police said, he took another horse and rode off into the hills. His lonely figure was spotted many times in the days that followed, but he made himself mighty scarce, drifting always westward and south.

He easily could have covered 200 miles between Bowden and the ranch where he was captured last night.

The first sign of him after his escape turned up on a ranch south of Cochrane, a foothills town about 40 miles northwest of Calgary. One of its horses mysteriously disappeared one midnight and a stranger was in its place the next morning. The strange horse was plenty weary. The youthful outlaw drifted south again, disappearing into the hills whenever someone spotted him.

West of High River, about 25 miles south of Calgary, another horse trade was pulled on the Cartwright ranch. This time a 22 calibre rifle disappeared along with the horse.

As he travelled, the youth apparently lived off the land, well-populated with game, and slept under the stars at night. A hunter's shack or an empty line cabin on the far reaches of a ranch may have offered him shelter occasionally.

And thus for a month he ghosted his way through the foothills, hunted and apparently alone, except for the horse that carried him. But the Mounties doggedly on his trail finally brought an end to his lonesome adventure.

Details of his capture were not available here.
