BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Fourth of High Card Power Is Enough To Suggest Game

When Mr. Meek opened the bidding with one spade, Mrs. Keen correctly decided that she had enough to make two bids. She had about the equal of an average hand—25 per cent of the high card strength. This was not enough for game unless Mr. Meek had something over a minimum opening in distribution of high cards. But it was enough to suggest game by bidding twice.

Mrs. Keen's first bid was two clubs. Mr. Meek then made the gross underbid of two spades. A two no trump bid would have shown his true strength. However, it was fortunate that he was so conservative as Mrs. Keen might have raised to three no trump—a hopeless contract in this case.

Mrs. Keen's second bid was three spades which even Mr. Meek could not pass. He went on to four and Mr. Dale led the king of diamonds.

While Mr. Meek's cautiousness in the bidding was open to criticism, his cautiousness in the play was commendable indeed. He won the first trick with the ace of diamonds. He laid down the ace of spades and saw Mr. Dale drop the queen. Here he paused to reassess his chances. He had to lose a club and a diamond. Therefore he could afford to lose one spade. But not two.

It was possible that Mr. Dale had started with queen-jack doubletons in spades. If so, he had the lone jack at this point and the play of the king would pick it up. In that case Mr. Meek would make five-odd, losing no spade tricks at all.

But if the queen really was a singleton, then Mr. Abel had J-9-7 left. Here the play would lose two spade tricks for sure—and put the contract down one. The chance for an extra trick left Mr. Meek absolutely cold. At trick three he simply led a low spade toward the ten. If he lost to the lone jack on his left he would still take ten tricks. As it was, Mr. Dale showed out and Mr. Abel beat dummy's ten with the jack. But later Mr. Meek was able to take the marked finesse against Mr. Abel's guarded nine of spades.
