IWA Protests Accommodation On Union Boat

VANCOUVER (CP)—Officials of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA-CCL) have protested to marine authorities that improper ship accommodation was used to bring union loggers here for Christmas.

Fred Fieber, secretary of Local 1-71 of the IWA, said the protest to the Canadian Maritime Commission in Ottawa was made because of several complaints that the Union Steamships Co. made charges for services not rendered.

He said the most recent complaint was over a trip by the Lady Cynthia from Port McNeill.

The ship had no overnight sleeping accommodation for a trip from Port McNeill to Vancouver that took 16 hours and 20 minutes.

The men were charged first class passage for this type of service.

Union officials said the logging company employing the men had chartered the ship and the Lady Cynthia was the only one available.

"Owing to tide conditions entirely, it was necessary to make the trip overnight instead of during daylight hours," a company spokesman said.

Particularly high grade papers are made solely from rag pulp.
