Rosenberg Story Ends as Pair Walk Quietly to Die in Chair

PRINCETON, N.Y. — Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and his wife, Ethel, walked quietly to the electric chair Friday night and were executed for the crime of delivering Soviet Russia secrets of atomic bomb.

They were the first non-military convicts in the history of the United States to be executed for espionage.

At the hour of retribution, crowds gathered, demonstrating in New York, London and Paris. In Dublin, two bottles of kerosene were thrown through a window of the United States information office. They did not explode.

The Rosenbergs spent most of their last day together. Warden Denno said they talked from about noon to 7:20 p.m. (EDT) in the women's wing of the prison. They were separated by a wire screen.

A party of official witnesses entered the death chamber a few moments before 8 p.m.

A moment later, a voice was heard in the corridor leading in from the death chamber.

Then Rabbi Irving Koslow entered, intoning words of the 23rd Psalm. "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want."

Rosenberg was a step behind him. It was about 8:02 p.m.

Rosenberg, 35, his face blank, turned, without guidance, to the electric chair and sat down quietly. A few minutes later he was dead.

About three minutes later, Rabbi Koslow's voice again came from beyond the door.

Ethel Rosenberg, 37, walked behind him.

She stopped in front of the electric chair.

Two women had followed her into the chamber. One was Mrs. Helen Evans, prison matron. Ethel Rosenberg whirled back from the chair and extended her arm toward Mrs. Evans.

Mrs. Rosenberg then pulled the short, white-haired matron toward her, and the two women kissed.

Each murmured, but the words were unintelligible to the witnesses. Later Mrs. Evans said she only recalled saying "good-bye."

Again, the black helmet, straps and leg contacts were set in place. Just before the gear was placed on her head and face, Mrs. Rosenberg closed her eyes.

Then the switch was thrown and the metallic rattle sounded again.

Then, as before, the straps were taken from her chest and doctors examined her. This time, the decision was not immediate.

They murmured to Warden Denno and he signalled the guards to replace the straps.

Twice more, the switch was thrown and the buzzing hum filled the chamber.

Then it was finished. With the second examination, she was pronounced dead.

The second execution had begun at 8:11½ and ended at 8:16. So closed the story of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg which began more than three years ago.

Many Attend Impressive Last Rites for Mrs. Arnold

Andrew's Cathedral was packed yesterday as more than 100 friends and relatives paid respects to one of Prince Rupert's best and most respected citizens, Mrs. Nora Arnold, who died in hospital here last Monday after a lengthy illness.

The church was filled with tributes from many parts of Canada, and a beautiful service was placed in a prominent position.

A simple, impressive service was held by Canon Basil S. Procter, a lifelong friend of Mrs. Arnold's, who spoke briefly of her life and the city saying that "she was very thoroughly, and very highly died."

The pallbearers were: Ted and James Donaldson, Fred and Ed Smith, Joe Scott and Joe Payne.

Honorary pallbearers were: E. G. W. Nickerson, Mayor Whalen, R. E. Moore, Orme and Joe Wong.

Mrs. Arnold, a former alderman and the first woman mayor of Prince Rupert, was born in Wellington, Northampton, England, and came here in 1920.

She began her active career teaching at King Edward and St. John Street schools.

Married to the late George H. Arnold in 1931, she took over management of his real estate and insurance business upon his death five years later.

Mrs. Arnold was secretary of the Ratepayers' Association, she was aldermanic seat in 1942 and was re-elected in 1943 and 1944. The following year she ran for mayor and was elected the winner.

B.C. Salmon Strike Nears End As Negotiators Reach Accord

Release Of POWs Demanded

By The Canadian Press

SEOUL—South Korea's acting prime minister has demanded that Gen. Mark Clark immediately release some 9,000 anti-Communist Korean prisoners still in Allied stockades because "we must liberate them all."

And the UN commander today released a scathing letter accusing South Korea's fiery President Syngman Rhee of breaking a "personal commitment" not to take unilateral action with ROK forces in the UN command.

Clark called the release of almost 26,000 anti-Red prisoners on Rhee's orders this week "precipitous and shocking."

Rhee and his cabinet met this morning to study a stinging rebuke from President Eisenhower.

CONTROL GOVERNMENT

Meanwhile, the Reds today angrily told the Allies if the United Nations wants true it must control South Korea's rebellious government and suppress the 26,000 anti-Red prisoners freed by President Rhee.

Although, the Communists protested vehemently at Rhee's arbitrary action, they did not rule out an armistice.

But their terms appeared near impossible—the Korean prisoners have melted into the countryside with Rhee's blessing and the split between South Korea and the UN command apparently was growing deeper.

The Reds were today reported massing some 16,000 fresh troops along the east central front—scene in the past week of the greatest Communist offensive in two years.

Two new Red divisions were reported moving into the Pukhan River lines, the sector where perhaps 40,000 Communists pushed South Korean troops back as much as two miles Sunday and Monday.

At 7 p.m. the cadets will form up at the drill hall to proceed by bus to the airbase at Seal Cove where the inspection will take place.

With a pipe band in attendance the inspection will start at 7:30 p.m. The squadron will be under the command of Dr. H. W. MacDonald, new commanding officer.

Applewhite Opens Campaign For Re-Election in Skeena

Special to The Daily News

TELEGRAPH CREEK.—E. T. (Ted) Applewhite, federal Liberal candidate for Skeena riding, fired the opening gun in his campaign for re-election at a well-attended meeting at Tulsequah, speaking of the record of the Liberal government with particular reference to mining and labor.

He claimed that the Liberals had good cause for pride in their party's labor record and outlined labor advances in the past four years.

He expressed the view that national health insurance must come eventually, but that it would be dishonest to inaugurate such a system until it was certain that it would work efficiently and effectively.

An interested audience asked questions dealing with such varied subjects as defence spending, freight rates, civil defence and ways of dealing with a depression, all of which the candidate answered apparently acceptably.

On Thursday night Mr. Applewhite spoke at a meeting of over 60 persons at Telegraph Creek, at which he again discussed the government record with special reference to the needs of the population of the northern part of B.C.

A question and discussion period followed the meeting and plans were also discussed for improvements to the Telegraph Creek airship.

Mr. Applewhite was scheduled to speak in Atlin last night.

Station 'B' Closed Today

Prince Rupert Postal Station "B" closed after business at noon today.

Postal authorities are making an effort to establish a sub-post office in the vicinity which would give full financial service to the residents of the area.

The service to be given will not, however, include the delivery of mail either through lock boxes or general delivery.

No decision regarding location or date of opening of a sub-post office has been made, but as soon as it is known the office will be opened immediately. Postmaster Jack Burgess announced this morning.

Pair Jailed For Jewelry Store Theft

Two young Terrace men were sent to jail yesterday for breaking and entering and theft at Cook's Jewellers in Terrace last May 24.

They were: Edward Mathews, 18, who was sentenced to two years in B.C. penitentiary, and David McConnell, 16, who was sentenced to one year definite and one year less a day indeterminate at New Haven.

The sentences were meted out by Judge W. O. Fulton in County Court. A. Bruce Brown was prosecutor.

The two men pleaded guilty to the charge when they first appeared in court at Terrace and elected for speedy trial.

Goods and cash to the value of $4,400 were stolen from the store. Quick work by RCMP led to recovery of most of the loot.

Members to Vote On Recommendation

The week-long strike of 1,500 British Columbia salmon fishermen moved near settlement today following a price agreement between union negotiators and operators.

The agreement is subject to a vote of the membership and if the price contract is approved fishing is expected to start early next week.

New prices proposed to fishermen are: sockeye salmon, 22 cents a pound; coho, 11 cents; pinks, 7½ cents; summer chums, 5½ cents; fall chums, 8 cents in Johnston Straits and the Fraser River and 6½ cents in other areas.

The union had demanded 23 cents for sockeye, while cannery operators offered 20 cents originally.

A joint statement today announcing the price agreement was signed by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (TCL), the Native Brotherhood of B.C., the Fishing Vessel Owners Association, and the Fisheries Association of B.C., representing the operators.

The fishermen's negotiating committee recommends acceptance of the agreement.

The heavy runs of sockeye are not due until the last days of June and in July. In Rivers and Smith's Inlets the sockeye season is only due to open June 28 while in the Skeena and Naas Rivers it had been scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

Northern fishermen have been called to a meeting in the Canadian Legion auditorium here at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Fishing will NOT start here Sunday regardless.

The time to start fishing will be set by the joint negotiating committee in Vancouver following the tabulation of the vote.

At least 48 hours will be allowed for fishermen to reach the grounds.

Any fish taken prior to the actual time set by the joint committee will be declared "hot," a union spokesman said.

It is not expected that fishing will get underway before Tuesday at the earliest.
