Relative Gets Heart of Royalist Scot

VANCOUVER (CP)—The heart of Montrose, which has arrived in Vancouver, will be returned to Great Britain after the death of its owner.

Mrs. Thomas Hurley, direct descendant of the Scottish Marquis of Montrose who was hanged, drawn and quartered 300 years ago, said today the heart arrived here by airmail late yesterday.

"My uncle, David Campbell-Johnstone, has promised to cooperate with me in deciding what to do with it when I die," Mrs. Hurley said.

"Unless the Communists have occupied Great Britain when I die it will be returned there."

Mrs. Hurley was presented with the heart recently at a wedding present from her husband, 64-year old Thomas Hurley, dean of Vancouver lawyers.

The heart was held up for some time by English customs and was not released until it was shown it had "practically no value."

WHITEHALL NOTEBOOK

Racial Prejudice Factor in Economy

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON — Of all the problems confronting contemporary Britain, none reveals the perversity of human relationships more clearly than the prejudices which prevent Italian miners from contributing to western recovery.

Stated simply, here is the chain story of frustration:

Europe needs coal. Britain has the coal but hasn't the men to dig it. Italy has a pool of 2,000,000 unemployed, many of whom are pathetically eager to work in British mines. But the British labor force, for countless illogical reasons, won't take them.

BLACK GOLD

Everybody agrees on the importance of the coal, Britain's "black gold" and keystone of her prosperity since the industrial revolution. Another 20,000,000 tons a year would transform the economy. As it is, the country that the world's greatest producer now has to import coal from the United States.

There are other exasperating angles. Sweden, for instance, used to get her coal from Britain. Now she has to look to Poland. In return, the Swedes send machine tools which would come in handy this side of the iron curtain.

British miners are said to be reasonable, friendly men, with a respect for international solidarity. Why do they object to work-mates from Palermo or Naples? It seems clear, from talks with union officials and politicians and from magazines and newspaper articles, that a complex of factors is involved.

The miners don't want to share hard-won benefits with outsiders. Television in the miner's cottage is the symbol of a new prosperity, and perhaps a new psychology. Some men think the Italians won't want to stay in what is admittedly no cream-puff industry. Some think the Italians don't have to pay income tax. Others claim they are lazy and unambitious.

ROMANTIC ANGLE

There are even romantic factors, says an article in the Yorkshire Post by G. L. Wilson:

"The undercurrent of sexual hostility to the Italians would have sent D. H. Lawrence hurrying away to write a new novel. Thousands of miners who have never seen an Italian regard him as an amorous tenor with a fondness for ice cream and women."

This British aversion seems all the more remarkable when contrasted with the heart-breaking enthusiasm of the Italians. All reports suggest that the newcomers have one common characteristic: an astonishing capacity for work.

The recruits already here, aged between 18 and 31, take in stride such difficulties as a 10-week course in basic English. But fewer than 1,000 Italians have been accepted.

Fly-Fishing Rights Hit Auction Block

By JOHN MOSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FREDERICTON — If it follows previous patterns, the public auction of angling leases in New Brunswick will be a colorful affair in the old legislative building here March 12.

The unique sale, held every 10 years, attracts a variety of bidders for the right to cast their flies in some of the world's best angling waters.

Wealthy United States sportsmen, or their nattily dressed legal representatives, rub shoulders with gum-rubbered, macinawed guides who hope to pick up good fishing stretches for a minimum expenditure.

However, many of the stretches at stake in the auction represent pleasure for only the rich. Prices for some sections of the Restigouche River range up to $2,000. The lowest price is $100 for a stretch of Indian Lake. Stretches of the Kedgewick River will bring up to $4,000 or more.

Conducted by the provincial department of lands and mines, the sale of salmon and trout angling leases is for exclusive rights on numerous rivers and lakes where they are bordered by crown-owned land.

The 10-year leases will expire March 1, 1962. Lessees are restricted to surface fly fishing with rod and line.

Some clubs, whose membership comprises wealthy U.S. residents, don't have to worry about the auctions. Years ago they bought the proprietary rights for certain angling stretches at great expense.

Prairie Man Collects an Armed Force

WINNIPEG (CP)—An international army stands in this prairie capital, ready to attack with artillery and fixed bayonets.

But there's no reason for Canadian defence officials to be alarmed. The army includes 38 regiments from eight countries but it takes up no more room than the tops of five card tables.

The "army" is nothing more than an extra large collection of metal soldiers. Commander-in-chief is 22-year-old Grant Hopkins with his father acting as second-in-command.

The collection was started by Grant's father while he served as an aeronautical engineer with the RCAF. He picked up many of the pieces travelling throughout Canada and the United States.

The complete collection comprises 1,500 foot soldiers plus equipment of the modern-day army. One scaled-down field piece shoots small projectiles and emits a belch of smoke.

NOTABLE ARRAY

The army has in its ranks such colorful figures as the Bengal Lancers, Togoland Warriors, Welsh Guards, French Legionnaires, United States Marines and many Scot regiments.

It probably is the only peacetime army which includes five Russian cavalrymen. The only country known to have an army and not represented is Czechoslovakia.

This can easily be changed by looking up the correct data on uniforms and doing a quick remodelling job with paint.

Grant says the collection requires a lot of leg work to libraries to find historical data. He has magazines listing 10,000 collectors with more than 1,000 pieces.

Ashton McDown of Pennsylvania is the largest collector in the United States with 10,000 pieces worth an estimated $20,000. Canada's largest collection is owned by Maj. W. J. MacDougald of Montreal and Winnipeg.

Fred Hemsworth Returns to City

Fred Hemsworth, former provincial government resident engineer here, revisited this city today en route to Stewart. He left last spring on transfer as East Kootenay resident engineer but in November gave up the job to go into private business.

Mr. Hemsworth now is a partner in the firm of mining consultants, Hill, Legg & Hemsworth, in Vancouver.

His trip to Stewart, delayed by bad flying weather, is on behalf of Indian Mines, a client.

Welder Suffers Burns by Faulty Torch

A 58-year-old boilermaker and welder for Canadian National Railways here suffered severe burns yesterday afternoon when the hose of an acetylene torch he was using came off the cylinder.

In Prince Rupert General Hospital in good condition is A. J. "Bert" Teng, 937 Ambrose Avenue, with second-degree burns to face and stomach region.

Teng told ambulance drivers the full blast of flame hit him in the stomach when the hose suddenly became detached. Then he had to run through a ball of flame to escape the intense heat of the blazing torch, out of control. The welder was working alone at the round house.

School for Dangerous Car Drivers

VANCOUVER (CP)—A police operated school for dangerous drivers has been suggested by Alderman Birt Showler. Mr. Showler made the suggestion in his annual report as chairman of the Traffic and Safety Committee of the B.C. Automobile Association meeting here yesterday.

He said such a plan is being operated successfully in the United States.

Works Minister E. C. Carson also addressed the meeting. He said there was little hope of a reduction in taxes for automobile owners in the foreseeable future.

Harry Duker was elected president of the association. He succeeds Fred G. Brown. Everett Irwin was elected vice-president, succeeding Duker.

Egypt Denounces Churchill's Call For Token Troops

PARIS — A spokesman of Egypt's United Nations delegation said here today Egypt would appeal to the security council if the United States, France or Turkey accepted Winston Churchill's invitation to send token forces to the Suez Canal zone. The spokesman said that Churchill's invitation to send such forces "constitutes a new attack on the sovereignty of Egypt."

Churchill said in his address to Congress yesterday, "It is no longer for us alone to bear the whole burden of maintaining the freedom of the famous waterway. It would enormously aid us in our task if even only token forces of other partners were stationed in the Canal Zone as a symbol of the resolution of the purpose which inspires us."

The Egyptian spokesman Mahmoud Azmi Bey read out a statement which challenged Churchill's claim that Britain was only in the Canal Zone to safeguard world commerce.

FLOOD WATERS RISE—Unoccupied summer cottages were flooded when the St. Lawrence overflowed the north shore just east of Montreal island. Some families in nearby cottages fled to higher ground but damage was not expected to be extensive. (CP Press)

Chinook Gales Sweep Alberta

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Chinook winds averaging 40 to 60 miles per hour and gusting to more than 100 in half-minute periods, yesterday ripped through southwestern Alberta.

There were no immediate reports of any extensive damage to buildings. Trash cans were blown along downtown Lethbridge streets. Flights of Trans-Canada Air Lines were cancelled.

Outside the city, highways and side roads were drifted over by swirling snow which reduced visibility to half mile or less. Motorists, unable to see further than a car length in the blinding snow, turned on their headlights.

Windjammer Rides Out Rough Seas

DEAL, England — The four-masted German bark Pamir, one of the last of the big sea-going wind-jammers, today rode out the North Sea gale which had sent life boats scudding to her rescue.

The vessel with 45 cadets, 40 Germans, four Britains and one Italian, and 46 crew members aboard had radioed an urgent call for help, after heavy seas had pounded off one of the masts. Later a message from Pamir said the weather moderated and she was to resume her voyage without incident.

The picturesque bark left Hamburg for Rio de Janeiro on January 10 with a cargo of 4,000 tons of iron ore and 400 of cement. The boys aboard are training for the marine. Gales, raging around ever the British Isles, were piling to shelter today.

It is no more difficult to plant indoors from seed than to bake a cake. But just as important to follow instructions you undertake to do in any directions well.

Rum stories...

"By the great Horn Spoon, those were gales," said the bosun.

"Not only could we not round the Horn, but the fury of the elements was driving us backwards up the coast of America. Only by the unusual feat of using the bowsprit as a rudder could I keep us from perishing on those inhospitable shores. At this point, a flock of gigantic albatrosses sank exhausted on the deck. Hastily reviving them with cots of our cargo, Lamb's Navy Rum, I harnessed them to the vessel and encouraged them to fly in the desired direction. The upshot was that our time for the Boston-Sacramento run stood as a record for thirty years."

"That's a Rum Story," said the unsuspecting guest.

"Thank you, sir. I should enjoy nothing better than a Lamb's Navy Rum."
