Wall at McClymont Park Reported 35% Complete

The rock retaining wall in McClymont Park is 35 per cent complete. City Superintendent George Beaton told the Parks board last night.

He expects that the wall will be completed by the end of June.

Queried by Commissioner Bob Eby as to whether he thought a rock wall was more economical than a concrete one, Mr. Beaton said that he did.

"It's far ahead of a cement wall," the city superintendent said. "You need a rock retaining wall to halt the erosion in the park. There's a certain amount of give to it."
