Charles Wins Easily Over Rex Layne

SAN FRANCISCO—Former heavyweight kingpin Ezzard Charles punched his way back into championship contention Wednesday night when he floored Rex Layne four times to win a unanimous decision over the Lewiston, Utah, gamster in their nationally televised fight.

Charles, weighing 187½ pounds, spotted his big rival 15½ pounds and proceeded to give him a terrific beating.

This was their third meeting and definitely proved the 31-year-old Charles to be master of his 24-year-old rival.

Charles won their first fight by a technical knockout two years ago and lost a disputed 10-round decision to Layne in Utah last August.

Canucks Win Quarter Finals

VANCOUVER—Vancouver Canucks last night edged Seattle Bombers 5-4 to win the Western International Hockey League quarter finals. Canucks won three games against Seattle's one in the series.

Norfolk country on Lake Erie in Ontario was created in 1792 and named after Norfolk country in England.

BLACKWOOD on Bridge

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Player With Poor Hand Wins By Smart Bidding

Bidding the big hands correctly is more spectacular, but proper handling of the little hands is just as important.

Look at Mr. Dale's hand in today's deal. He had practically nothing. Yet more than 500 points hung in the balance depending on the first round of bidding.

Mrs. Keen opened the bidding with a diamond and Mr. Meek, vulnerable against non-vulnerable opponents, didn't think he had enough to enter the auction.

Now, if Mr. Dale had been strictly a book player, he would have passed. Certainly a pass here could not be severely criticized. But he didn't even consider the action. As he saw it, there were two possible bids—one heart and two diamonds.

A one heart bid could hardly get him into serious trouble. There was even the possibility that game could be made in hearts. But it was very remote. Mrs. Keen would have to have almost an opening two bid or a phenomenal fit in hearts.

There is also the fact that when a player opens the bidding with a diamond, the suit he is likely to be shortest in is hearts.

Mr. Dale thought further. Owing to his own weakness, there was a pretty fair chance that the opponents held half or more than half of the high card strength and they might have an ice-cold game. Where was that game most likely to be? In spades, of course.

While the one-heart response would probably do no harm, it wouldn't do any good either. Mr. Dale chose the best bid on the hand—two diamonds. This was a bid which COULD do some good for his side. It could shut out a one-spade over-call by Mr. Abel.

It did just that. Mr. Abel would have bid over a pass by Mr. Dale and it is quite probable that he would have bid one spade over a one-heart bid on his right. But to come in at the two range, vulnerable, especially after his partner had passed, was too tough.

Mrs. Keen made exactly two diamonds and, as you see, the North-South hands are cold for four spades.
