Golden Anniversary Bells Ring For Mr. and Mrs. Casey

Fifty years of married life will be celebrated tomorrow by a well-known pioneer couple when Mr. and Mrs. George Casey, 1122 Eleventh Avenue East, will open house.

Forty-two guests are two and three daughters. Darrin and George Casey arrived yesterday by car from Trail. The daughters are Mrs. Frank and Mrs. Alfred Teed, of Vancouver, and Mrs. Lucas of Qualicum Beach, whom arrived today. The daughter is Mrs. E. Hills of 1501 Second Avenue West. Mr. and Mrs. Casey were married at Rossland, B.C., and came to Prince Rupert in 1910. The late George Casey was an alderman of the city and is known as the "laborer's champion."

Mr. Casey's son-in-law, George Hills, is an alderman, and Mrs. Casey is in the recent election. Casey's have eight grandchildren. A family dinner will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow, and open house to all friends will continue at 7:30.

Donald McCorkindale, pioneer settler, is about to leave the city on a holiday visit to the country and Ontario. His party will include a stay at the McLean.

More Women for United Nations

NEW YORK (AP)—More training for positions with the United Nations Secretariat has been urged by the board of the International Business and Professional Women.

The annual meeting, the board said in a resolution that "are not as yet adequate" presented either in the secretariat of the United Nations specialized agencies, or as representatives of governments.

The board used national federations to "encourage their members and experienced women to apply for service in these agencies, and that they suggest to governments qualified women to be included as delegates to international meetings."

Brides Transform Wedding Dress For Evening Wear

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Parisian brides have adopted the idea of having a wedding dress which can later be transformed for evening wear.

The leading fashion houses are co-operating so that a girl may be married with all the trimmings and still not forfeit the price of a gown which can be worn only once.

The idea is exemplified in dresses which are décolleté under a snug-fitting, high-necked jacket.

One of the loveliest Parisian brides this spring was Marie Blanche de Monferrant, who wore a gown specially created for her by Jean Dessès. It was made of white shantung, slim lined in front with the fullness thrown towards the back, and anchored by a row of small buttons. The snug-fitted corset jacket strips off over a square-necked décolleté.

Pierre Balmain's striking wedding gown, shown in his latest collection, also featured the slim straight line in front with fullness drawn to the back, ending in a long-graded train.

The tight-fitting bodice is elaborately embroidered in a sun ray effect with "diamonds" and seed pearls. A tiny Catherine de Medici tiara in diamonds, crossed just above the brow, suspends the full length tulle veil.

Jacques Fath also features embroidery in an organdy gown, entirely applied with lace scrolls. The practical idea of this dress is the absence of a train—which enables it to go off dancing on the honeymoon. The actual train is formed by a wide satin sash, with a huge bustle effect and long ends trailing behind. An amusing little ruffled lace hat, half cloche and half bonnet, is worn straight on the head, swathed across the back with veiling.

Jacques Heim's jeune fille department takes a girl right up to the altar in a gown of white guipure lace. This model—and again the dress is rainless and could immediately serve as an evening dress—is worn over a full slip of pale blue tulle. The same idea is used for a two-piece dress, consisting of a décolleté evening dress worn under a sheer, long-sleeved and high-necked redingote coat dress.

Black Dress For Saue Appearance

NEW YORK (AP)—Suave is the word for Nettie Rosenstein, famous for her special touch with the all-important "little black dress," which this season manages to give the effect of having been poured on.

Her fall collection shows a series of these, all having rounded shoulder lines, slim midriffs, skirts narrow or with controlled fullness, understated but flattering.

With the black dresses she adds massive gold coin medallions or pendants and heavy gold chains.

Her collection of suits also stresses soft tailoring, natural shoulders and a feminine touch. Most have slim skirts and brief jackets with flared petal-like peplums. The slim waistline is important in the fall silhouette, the lines curving above and below.

Jane Derby shows a series of well-bred suits in understated design, accenting the costume suit of box jacket and sheath dress.

The ladylike black crepe-de-chine cocktail dresses trimmed in delicate handwork and lace are again in evidence.

Arctic Mission Film Shown at Annunciation

In Annunciation School last night more than 100 people saw a color film of the arctic missions entitled "The Mackenzie Vicariate" showing scenes of Oblate mission activity from Fort McMurray to Aklavik.

The film was shown by Father H. F. Dunlop, O.M.I., of Ottawa, formerly with the native missions in Sechart and North Vancouver. Father Dunlop, also editor of the magazine Oblate Missions, is at present on a nationwide tour, and in addition to his main film has slides indicating the present world wide activities of the Oblate Congregation.

Recalls 74 Years Of Prairie Life, Happy, Strenuous

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—City life is busier but not nearly so strenuous as country living in the opinion of Mrs. P. G. Spencer, old-timer in the Prince Albert district.

Mrs. Spencer moved into the city last year after spending 70 odd years on a farm near Fenton on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River.

"I've brought up seven children and still own my own farm, running it by myself since my husband died in 1930," says the energetic pioneer homemaker.

She recalls the days when oxen were more plentiful than horses and a girl's sole future was a husband and a home of her own.

"I was married before I reached 18," said Mrs. Spencer. "Dances were a much-looked-forward-to occasion. They were held several times a year. But we rarely visited friends—time was too precious and distances too far."

SPINS OWN WOOL Mrs. Spencer can boast of many attributes. She has knitted and crocheted millions of stitches in making clothing.

"I've always kept sheep, carding and spinning my own wool. One of my sons has a sweater knitted over 20 years ago—still strong and wearable."

Mrs. Spencer has never discarded a string or a rag in her life. Every little piece was saved to make up into rugs and other household articles.

Born and raised in Saskatchewan, she thinks there's nothing like the gentle roll of the prairies. On visiting the west coast, she found the mountains depressing.

"Returning to the prairies gives one a free and easy feeling," she remarked.

On her 74th birthday, Mrs. Spencer was proud of her good health. One morning last year she attended a wedding in Saskatoon and flew back to Prince Albert that evening.

Mrs. Spencer advises young people to read the Bible every day.

The only active volcano in the United States is Mount Lassen near Shasta in California.

Miss Marg. Carr Shower Honoree

The home of Mrs. Andrew Thompson was the scene of a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Margaret Carr last week.

Mrs. E. R. Foster and Mrs. Fred Smith of Digby Radio Station were co-hostesses with Mrs. Thompson. Games were enjoyed the last being a "Treasure Hunt."

The bride-elect was presented with a bottle supposed to have been washed in by the sea. In it was a map of a mysterious mountainous country and directions which led to the discovery of the Pirate's Treasure Chest.

This was found to be filled to the brim with a variety of lovely and useful gifts. After these were duly admired, dainty refreshments were served, including a cake beautifully decorated by Mrs. Thompson and topped by a tiny bride and groom.

Those present were Mrs. R. W. Large, Mrs. Carr, Miss Margaret Carr, Mrs. J. S. Irvine, Mrs. G. Ciccone, Mrs. Santerbanc, Mrs. Shruball, Mrs. Whittaker, Mrs. O. Faught, Mrs. Wm. Dunn, Mrs. Seiber, Mrs. Caster, Mrs. Ridsdale, Mrs. Bea McDonald, Mrs. Astoria, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Smith.

Not able to attend but sending gifts were Mrs. George Perdue, New Westminster; Mrs. Art Nickerson, Mrs. L. M. Greene, Mrs. McComb and Sadie, Mrs. Petroff, Mrs. Penoff, Mrs. H. Young, Mrs. Skogmo, Mrs. Harry Anderson and Mrs. R. B. Skinner.

VON to Give Scholarships

OTTAWA (CP)—The Victorian Order of Nurses plans to award 50 scholarships worth $750 each to train more public health nurses in Canada.

The decision was made at a recent meeting here of the order's management committee.

Applications will be considered immediately for the awards, the committee said. The winners will attend various universities across Canada for one-year courses and will then be posted to Victorian Order branches.

The new branch at St. John's, Nfld., will be opened August 1. Catherine Maddaford, now in Regina, has been appointed nurse in charge. Another branch will open Aug. 1 at Edmundston.

N.B. in charge of Jeannine Norbert, at present at Ronyn-Noranda in Quebec.
