Behind This New Railroad

A LENGTHY debate, in Ottawa, finally ended by a committee of senators agreeing the Canadian National Railroad must fence the right-of-way of the proposed rail link from Terrace to Kitimat.

It was the opinion, however, held by some of the senators speaking on the final passage of the Bill which authorizes the rail construction, that the territory between Terrace and Kitimat is "barren and uninhabited"—therefore no need to fence in the railroad.

The area, known as the Kitimat Valley may be quite uninhabited—for the time being—but, by no means, is it barren, or unproductive.

Our eastern senators should only see for themselves the kind of timber which is produced on this "barren" stretch of more than 40 miles, which has been described like a second Fraser Valley.

For once the valley has been logged, as it surely will, there is good reason to foresee an agricultural development there—especially with the rail facilities that will be provided, an arterial highway, and a thriving city as its market.

The most natural industry that could be established in the Kitimat Valley within the next 10 years is dairying on a large scale. And wherever there are cattle, railroads need fencing. That is what the majority of senators probably had in mind when they insisted that the "must fence" clause be inserted in the Bill.

We hope the board of transport commissioners will take a similar viewpoint should it be called upon to review that section of the Bill.

THE LETTERBOX

SOCIAL CREDIT TREATMENT OF NATIVES

Editor, The Daily News:
On June 4 you printed a letter from one Mr. McGuire of Vancouver re the treatment of natives under Social Credit in Alberta.

Since I am at the moment forced to admit that I have not sufficient data on hand regarding the native question in Alberta, I am forced to grant Mr. McGuire a point until I secure such information.

I would at this time, however, be pleased to hear from Mr. McGuire direct, by mail, or otherwise, and compare notes on the Indian question in Canada in general and in our own district in particular.

Over the years of my close contact with natives in northern British Columbia I have probably learned to know them and their problems better than any candidate in British Columbia with the exception of Mr. Frank Calder, who is today a credit to his people.

May I take this opportunity to thank Mr. McGuire for bringing this matter to my attention and will be happy to hear from him so that we may couple our efforts to work for natives, not at election time only, but throughout the year.

Fascists Re-Rise

I AM NOT surprised that the Fascists are making quite a comeback in Italy.

On my trips to that country in 1949 and 1951 I saw plenty of evidence to suggest that it was only a question of time till they did so.

Even in 1949 they were selling Marshal Graziana's book openly on the streets of Milan. Yet at that time Graziana was still in jail as a "war criminal."

THE ITALIAN people did not seem to be to have the making of good fascists, or potential communists, for that matter. I just don't see how Mussolini ever successfully regimented them like he did. For they seem to me so naturally lighthearted and witty that they don't seem to fit the totalitarian mold.

Last year they were selling a guide book to Rome. I noticed there was one brief reference to its "liberation" by the allies. They didn't say from whom it was liberated—that is, from themselves. Also in Florence a guide was showing me some of the battle scenes. He told us that on one side of the river were "the allies."

"Who was on this side?" I asked. "The enemy," the quick-witted rascal replied. "The enemy" of course included the Italians—of whom the guide may well have been one in person.

DEMOCRACY seems to me to be caught between two millstones everywhere in western Europe (except Scandinavia). In Italy the poverty is appalling. If the U.S. financial support had been pulled out before now the whole country would already have gone Communist or Fascist.

Democracy, of the stripe now in power in Italy, just does not seem to have the guts to tackle the fundamental social questions. Land reform is one of

VICTORIA REPORT

... by J. K. Nesbitt

VICTORIA—One more week to the great day of June 12—election day; the day of days in any democracy—the day when the people vote in secret, casting their ballots of their own free will.

It's so tremendous a day, so vital a day that one wonders how any person can shrug his shoulders, not bother to vote, saying of the candidates "they're all the same." That, of course, is just a mentally lazy man's excuse for not figuring things out for himself.

I've tried to sort out the result of this election, but it's beyond me. I still can't see how much clarity can come out of so confused a political situation. Whichever way I add it up I come to the same conclusion—another Coalition, with the CCF again as the official Opposition. Certainly, if the alternative vote is not used as intended, if there's much plumping, which I think there will be, I would say at this moment there's almost bound to be another Coalition between Liberals and Conservatives.

It was refreshing the other day to run away from politics for a few hours and step into the faded glories of a glamorous past—at an auction sale. The belongings of the late Mrs. R. P. Rithet were sold at "Hollybank," the stately old home in Victoria which she had occupied from the day she was a bride in 1875 to April last, when she died—77 years in the one house. What a remarkable record! Mrs. Rithet, through all those years, never threw anything away. She was nearly 100 when she died. At one time she was a beauty, a great hostess, presided at magnificent dinner parties in her beautiful dining room, gave high-society teas in her splendid drawing room, with its two white marble fireplaces, its two big bay windows, its two fine chandeliers, which at one time were gas lighted, its massive mirrors in their gilt frames, its ornately-decorated ceiling. Antique dealers did a lot of spirited bidding, and the fine old pieces of furniture will, in due course, find their way into rich American homes.

And yet, even at this auction sale, in a home now shabby and house, with milk bottles in boxes outside each window. Horrible thought!

It turns out now that old John Tod was a spiritualist. Tod retired from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1850, came to Victoria to retire, built a home near the Oak Bay waterfront. Some years ago Col. and Mrs. T. C. Evans came from Toronto, purchased the old house. Then came manifestations, as the colonel calls them—rocking chairs that rocked by themselves, a biscuit jar that sometimes swung by itself on its hook, a cellar door that opened at night. A few years ago the garden was dug up for an oil barrel, and human bones, covered with lime, were found. Since then there have been no manifestations.

And now it seems Tod was a spiritualist. Miss Madge Wolfenden, assistant Provincial Government architect came across this rather startling fact as she dug into Tod's life, preparing a paper to read before B.C. Historical Association. He died in 1882.

British Columbia's pulp paper tonnage is expected to exceed one million tons annually commencing the current 1952.

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHY

MONTREAL, June 5th—What's your most important "fashion accessory" in the summer? Don't you agree?—it's your hair! That's why the beautiful women are singing the praises of the shimmering, golden "glory" of your hair, no matter what colour it is. Nestle Lite is different. It cleans, lightens and conditions your hair at the same time. It contains nothing to make your hair brittle for Nestle Lite—$1.75—re-touch size—75c. And if you'd like a descriptive pamphlet—write to me—Barbara Brent, 1411 St. St., Montreal, P.Q.

"Even The Best Make-Up will look colourless and lifeless if you use one 'face' on top of another," says lovely Kim Hunter, co-star of Paramount's "Anything Can Happen." That's why it's so important to use a cleansing cream that gets to the bottom of stale make-up and grime. Try WOODBURY COLD CREAM with Penaten. Thanks to Penaten the rich cleansing and softening oils in Woodbury penetrate deeper into pore openings. Look at your skin tissue—see how much more dirt you remove... feel your skin softer and smoother. "Bright lights—night lights—they're all flattering when your skin is limpid and soft," says Kim. And I agree. Let Woodbury Cold Cream with Penaten give you the cleansing-care it needs for luminous loveliness! 23c, 45c, 75c and 1.00.

As For As I Can See, the really bothersome thing about these lovely spring and summer days, is that no one wants to spend any time indoors—least of all the ladies! And often, mothers have to be downright cross to get the youngsters out of the house. But there is an easy way to get the kids out of the house. Just say "Jell-O Pudding for supper," and watch the kids scrambling in. Milk-ripened JELL-O PUDDINGS are so delicious, the children love them. Mothers too, appreciate the nourishment of Jell-O Puddings, and the speed and ease of preparation... no double-baking needed. Keep several packages of the favorite Jell-O Pudding on hand. There are four Jell-O Pudding flavors and three Jell-O Tapioca Pudding flavors. As delicious as they are satisfying.

Here's a "Surprise Salad" your family will love. It's another wonderful way to serve HEINZ OVEN-BAKED BEANS. HOT BEAN SALAD. Brown 4 strips cut-up bacon with 1/3 cup chopped onion. Add 1/3 cup chopped celery, 1/3 cup Heinz Tomato Ketchup, 2 tbsp. Heinz Cider Vinegar, 2 tsp. Heinz Prepared Yellow Mustard, 16 oz. tin Heinz Oven-Baked Beans in Tomato Sauce. Simmer 10 min. Serve hot—beautifully garnished with lettuce or dandelion greens. Serves 4 and makes a wonderful Sunday-night supper.

Keep a supply of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans always on hand for wonderfully good, economical meals to please the family. And treat the folks to Heinz Cooked Spaghetti often, too. They'll be thrilled by its tantalizing tenderness—its spiky-good tomato sauce.

A Baby's Enthusiasm is fun to watch. That's just one reason why I like to see baby enjoying "CREAM OF WHEAT". Yes, babies love tempting, 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat"—and it loves them. For it's brimming over with good things that babies need for normal growth and good health. It provides iron to help maintain good red blood—and Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. What's more, mother—5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is so easy to prepare. It cooks to baby-ready digestibility in just 5 minutes of boiling. So give it to Baby often... and enjoy it every morning yourself. It's a whole-family favorite!

Something Specially Nice Dad? You'll like Father's 52 a memorable one for him when you give him a NYLON SHIRT. Made of a special "tricot"—something brand in shirting material—these shirts are handsome and comfortable in all kinds of weather. They're easy to wear and wash. Just say "Jell-O Pudding for supper," and watch the kids scrambling in. Milk-ripened JELL-O PUDDINGS are so delicious, the children love them. Mothers too, appreciate the nourishment of Jell-O Puddings, and the speed and ease of preparation... no double-baking needed. Keep several packages of the favorite Jell-O Pudding on hand. There are four Jell-O Pudding flavors and three Jell-O Tapioca Pudding flavors. As delicious as they are satisfying.

Baking A Lemon Pie for dessert tonight? Well, you'll want lots of fresh lemon flavour in it—and of course SUNKIST LEMONS—the finest, juiciest lemons you'll want for your pie is really good meringue. Try this...

SUNKIST MERINGUE For tender meringue, combine 1/2 tsp. salt 1 tsp. lemon juice 2 egg whites Beat until frothy, then add 4 tbsp. sugar gradually beating constantly. Continue beating until meringue holds a peak and looks satiny smooth. Cover pie. Brown in moderate oven (325 deg. F.) for 15 min. For a deeper meringue on a larger pie, use 3 egg whites and 8 tbsp. sugar.

I'm Putting It On My Shopping List right now. I don't want to miss a chance to run low... you see, it's a "must" in our home. For a "quickie" cup between household chores, there's nothing like it. It takes no longer to make than boiling the water. And it's a hostess' "best friend" it's as easy to make a potful as one cup. But the real reason I like to have a supply of Instant Chase & Sanborn always handy is that it's just plain good. That's because it's made by folks who "know" coffee—it's the result of over 100 years of coffee experience. It's a flavour there—and the real coffee lift. Try it! I know you'll like it. Economical, delicious instant coffee.

Most People Lock their doors when they set out on vacation. It's elementary safety precaution. But windows, they tell me, are easy to "jimmy", and doors can be opened even when locked. That's why it seems to me that the best of all ways to protect your valuables is to keep them in a Safety Deposit Box at the BANK OF MONTREAL. It costs so little—less than two cents a day—and it saves so much worry and trouble. Another safety measure I've found while on holiday is BoM Travellers Cheques. They're extra-safe, so simple to cash... and only you can cash your cheques. And, by the way—why not start a BoM Sunshine Account for your vacation next year? I've found the easiest way there is to pay for a better holiday every year. Just put away a definite part of every pay-check—get used to living a little less—and when holidays come 'round again, you can at least afford that dream-trip! Why not open your Sunshine Account today?
