THE STARVING WORLD of tomorrow will depend on food provided by man-made moons launched into outer space to move in regular or bits around the earth, according to the story, "Moon Farms to Banish Starvation" in the May issue of Mechanix Illustrated magazine. Their principal product will be algae, a new food substitute recently discovered by scientists, which is rich in vitamins A and B1 and has a far greater protein content than meat, fish or fowl. The "moons" probably will be saucer-shaped with growing tubes concentrically arranged on the upper deck; drying and collecting equipment, storage bins, living quarters for the workers and other equipment will be housed in the shallow bowl beneath. A tubular dock in the lower portion of the artificial satellite will allow for docking of the cargo ships that carry produce back to the earth daily.

Cleveland reports its export ousiness last year came to $500,000,000. Its business men talk confidentially of doubling that—some even say trebling it -within a few years after the seaway is completed.

Milwaukee is credited by many of its lake port rivals with having been foresighted in developing its waterfront for the seaway's expected coming.

IRON MINERS OPPOSED

Minnesota iron miners, who ship their ore down the lakes to the ports nearest the steel mills, fear the St. Lawrence seaway would open a cheap way in for competing ore, to be coming soon from Labrador and even from Venezuela.

Canadian actor Hume Cronyn will star at 8:30 tonight in "A Letter for Evie," a comedy drama over CFPR on Ford Theatre. He will be heard in the role of a soldier who accidentally promotes a romance between a girl back home and his army buddy. The fun starts when the girl tucks a letter in the pocket of a shirt being sent in a shipment of army clothing. The soldier who receives the shirt writes her a touching letter and, because he is definitely not the tall and handsome type, encloses a picture of an army buddy who does fill those qualifications.

Romance blooms between the gill and this army friend but a series of highly amusing mistaken identity incidents follow resulting in a Linui climax when the girl must choose between the letter writer and his friend.

Good Fit, Right Trump Plays Work 'Miracle'

A good fit between declarer's hand and dummy, plus proper handling of the trump suit, can work magic. And Miss Brash has to be on the receiving end of some kind of miracle in order to bring home some of her wild contracts.

In today's deal she made a completely unjustified jump to Champion angrily. four spades over her partner's Mr. Meek's raise was of the needled Miss Brash. With your maximum variety. Even so it hand, I'd have opened a diaappears Miss Brash must lose mond. It's automatic." three diamonds and a trump trick. There is no place to discard any of her losing diamonds even if that suit isn't opened.

But that's where the magic of the trump suit comes in. We can hardly blame Mr. Champion routing of incoming and out- But the steel companies in for not leading a diamond. With Lawrence, it might go by water right into Miss Brash's ace-

He decided on the normal opening of the king of clubs and dummy's ace won. Miss Brash promptly laid down the ace and king of spades and found out she had a trump loser when Mr. Abel discarded the eight of diamonds.

With no show of surprise or disappointment, she proceeded as follows. She led a small heart to the king, returned a club and ruffed it. She cashed the ace of hearts, then rufted a heart on the board. She ruffed another club in her hand and now led her last heart. If Mr. Champion ruffed at this point, Miss Brash would merely sluff a diamond from the board, losing only two diamonds and the trump trick.

So Mr. Champion descarded a club and Miss Brash ruffed in dummy. She led back dummy's last club and ruffed with her last trump. Fuming now, Mr. Champion had to follow suit-and that was Miss Brash's tenth trick.

"Horrible bidding," said Mr.

"No worse than the defense."
