FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Chief Urges Planning For Families, Sitters

October 7 to 13 will be observed throughout the country as Fire Prevention Week.

In a special message heralding the week, directed to all the citizens of Prince Rupert, Fire Chief Earl Becker today said that last year fire losses in the city of both life and property were higher than average.

The most heart-rending job of the fire department is the removal of charred child bodies from burned homes. Most of the parents had just "gone out for a minute," he stated.

In an all-out effort to reduce the fire death toll, Chief Becker gives these recommendations to families and baby-sitters. Observing them could mean the difference between life and death.

• "Lady Luck" was never meant to be baby sitter. Leaving youngsters alone and helpless is one of the surest ways to lose them to fire. Be certain that your baby sitter is capable of protecting your children in an emergency.

• Baby sitters and all children, old enough to understand should be fire conscious. It is a good thing to hold little fire drills with them. Be sure they know all the exits and the most direct route from their rooms to the outside. Explain that it is quite all right to break windows with a chair or other object in order to get outside.

• The baby sitter should know that at the first whiff of gas or smoke, she shouldn't waste time investigating. The best and safest thing she can do is get the children out of the house first of all. Tell her not to waste time dressing them but to wrap them up in a blanket or coat and get them out at once.

• If she cannot reach you by telephone safely and easily then tell her to call the fire department by pulling a fire alarm box, the location of which must be explained to her, or by using the telephone in a neighboring house.

• Be sure the baby sitter knows where you are going, and how you may be reached in an emergency. Even if you are going to the theatre, the box office there will reach you.

• Last winter, more than 50 Canadian children, four of them in Prince Rupert, and two in Port Edward, died in home fires — when their parents were out. In some cases, baby sitters died too. In one case, parents had four children in the care of a 15-year-old who was mentally defective. In several others, parents were charged and convicted of criminal negligence when it was proved they had spent hours in beverage rooms, leaving the children to fend for themselves.

• But most bereaved parents sorrowfully reported "we just left the house for a minute..."

• If anyone wishes help or advice in planning a fire drill in your home, phone the Fire Department — number 2211."

New Contest Underway Today

Daily News readers today get their first chance at winning some very valuable merchandise as the city business-sponsored "Scrambled Names" contest gets underway.

The entire contest will run for five weeks, and each week three merchandise prizes will be given away. This week's prizes are:

A woman's wrist watch, a mantel radio and a coffee percolator.

Required with each entry are contest slips which may be obtained upon purchase of $1 or more worth of merchandise from any of the business companies sponsoring the contest series.

One contest slip will be issued on each purchase.

Judging will be based on correctness, neatness and originality of the entry.

In cases of ties, the number of contest slips sent in with the entry will be taken into consideration.

Once a contestant has won a prize in one of the weekly contests he is no longer eligible for prizes in further weekly contests, but should continue to submit entries as his bid for the grand prize of a combination radio-record player.

Closing date for this week's contest is October 15 at noon, and subsequent contests will close at noon Monday, seven days after the contest page for that week has been published.

Presentation of the prizes will probably be held at the Civic Centre at the close of the five week contest program.

Gale Cuts City Wires To Outside Communications Out 24 Hours

Prince Rupert remained virtually without communication with the "outside world" this afternoon, more than 24 hours after a southeast gale with winds up to 60 miles per hour, played havoc with telephone, telegraph, teletype and radio wires.

The storm which increased in intensity all yesterday afternoon and reached its peak about 6 p.m. dropped 45 telephone poles between here and Woodcock, about 180 miles by road east of the city. The wires went down about 3 p.m. both Canadian National Telegraphs and the Prince Prince Rupert Telephone Department reported today. The CNR repeater station and city long distance telephone department reported five total failures in wire service between the city and Woodcock.

No telegraph service east or south has been possible since mid-yesterday afternoon and at press time the CN Telegraphs had more than 150 telegrams waiting to be sent the moment wire service is restored.

With no teletype or telegraph services available the only source of information The Daily News had today was a faint radio telephone connection with Canadian Press in Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands, over which a minimum of world news, including the World Series was obtained.

Unable to be received was the Old Country Soccer scores as by mid-afternoon the connection was still possible but operators were unable to hear Vancouver. Radio station CF PR has been without a CRC network connection since 3 p.m. yesterday.

The wooden vessel Triggerfish, a converted American sub chaser, went down about 1 a.m. PST.

The weather office said winds were light.

Five survivors were picked up by the vessel Hornblower and were taken to the North Vancouver General hospital.

Survivors were identified as skipper Douglas Manuel, 29, of Richmond, B.C.; chief engineer Kenneth Davies, 31, Vancouver; deckhand George Robson, 35, Vancouver; cook Earl McCuaig, 41, Vancouver, and Ishie Van Der Zee, believed to be an engineer from West Vancouver.

The train arrived about 6:30 a.m. today.

The train was halted by both the west-bound CNR passenger train, due in last night was also a victim of the storm as was a Terrace-bound car. The train arrived about 6:30 a.m. today.

All but Van Der Zee were released from hospital after treatment for shock. He was reported suffering from a broken arm and exposure.

Two Youths Recaptured After Escape From Lockup

Two juvenile boys who escaped from the RCMP lockup at Port Edward last night in the midst of a 60 miles per hour gale, were back in custody less than four hours later, RCMP reported today.

The pair, two 16-year-olds from Ketchikan, Alaska, appeared in Juvenile court this afternoon charged with theft of a gillnetter and were scheduled to be transferred to adult court in Prince Rupert later today. An added charge of escaping lawful custody is expected to be laid.

Police said that the pair, originally picked up last Monday after gillnetter was taken from the dock at Port Edward, were also being held for Alaskan authorities in connection with a boat theft in which they made their way to Prince Rupert. It is reported that the boat they arrived in was wrecked on the rocks near Port Edward.

It gives factual information about arthritis and rheumatism and will encourage those who suspect they have arthritis to seek medical advice only.

The Prince Rupert branch of CARS is staging a fund appeal October 11, under the chairmanship of H. Waldon Stoddard to finance the CARS clinic set-up early this year in the Prince Rupert General Hospital and to give financial assistance to patients in the district.

Slaughter's Three-Run Homer Gives Yanks First Series Win

Ford Comes Back To Curb Dodgers

NEW YORK (AP) — Enos Slaughter, 40-year-old veteran of the baseball world, slammed a three-run homer in the sixth inning today to provide a 5-3 victory for the New York Yankees in the World Series and put the Bombers back into contention after they had dropped the first two games to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Whitey Ford, who lasted three innings as Brooklyn won the first game last Wednesday, pitched steady ball this time allowing eight hits. The loser was Roger Craig.

The fourth game of the Series will be played tomorrow at Yankee Stadium and Yankee manager Casey Stengel said Tom Sturdivant would pitch for the Yankees. Manager Walt Alston said Sal Maglie, winner of the opener, Carl Erskine or perhaps Clem Labine, who finished today's contest, would hurl for Brooklyn.

The crowd of 73,077 today saw a ding-dong pitchers' duel for five innings as Brooklyn's Ford and Craig, who started for Brooklyn but left for a pinch-hitter after Slaughter slammed his three-run blast in the sixth.

It was a direct contrast to the merry-go-round struggle that required a record three hours and 26 minutes on Friday when Brooklyn blasted seven Yankee batters to a 13-8 defeat.

A single run by Brooklyn opened the scoring in the top of the second. The Yankees got it back quickly in their half when Slaughter slammed his three-run blast in the sixth.

The Yankees' big inning came in the sixth.

After Brooklyn took a 2-1 lead with a single run in the top of the sixth, the American League champions boomed back with three in the bottom half.

Brooklyn added another run in the seventh and the Yankees scored one more in the bottom of the eighth.
