Island Chamber Endorses Bid For Canadian Coast Guard

ULULET, B.C.—The Ululet Port Alberni chamber of commerce has endorsed a resolution calling for establishment of a Canadian coast guard service for the west coast. The move started in Tofino following the disappearance of two fishermen in their trailer May 14.

Meanwhile back at the location site, Director William A. Wellman took advantage of the suspended shooting to listen in on John Wayne's instruction in the few lines of Chinese he must speak in the film. Wellman admitted that he couldn't understand what Wayne was saying, but Wellman had nothing on the Chinese who appear in the picture. They couldn't understand Wayne either.

To play the village whose inhabitants escape Communism, Wellman chose China Camp, a community of Chinese fishermen-decendants, all of forebears who fled to the site after the San Francisco earthquake in 1906. All the decrees had to do was paint a few Chinese slogans on the shacks. The coast itself could pass for any of a thousand spots on the Chinese mainland.

A. S. Fleischman wrote the open play of "Blood Alley" from his own novel.

Survey Shows Salmon Caught Everywhere in North Pacific

SEATTLE, Sept. 26.—Salmon were caught at every spot in the North Pacific and outer waters of the Gulf of Alaska in which the fish and wildlife service vessel John N. Cobb dropped its nets.

The service, in a report on its survey, said a total of 50 gillnet sets showed salmon to be widely distributed over the high seas. The fishing was done at stations 50 to 300 miles offshore.

The check was made on a 12-week cruise from June 23 to September 13. The experimental produced from one to four gillnets.

Chum were most abundant in the over-all catch, while kings least numerous.

Over 2,000 frozen salmon were brought to Seattle for research studies, and 330 were tagged and released.

Fishpacker Found Awash But Floating

KETCHIKAN, Alaska.—Coast guard officials here said the fish packer Pirate has been located awash but still afloat near Cape Chacon between Hoonah Bay and Tatianay bay.

The pirate had been missing since Saturday. A radio call, saying "We are sinking," was heard Saturday night. It came from the coast guard said, from the Pirate. Cape Chacon was mentioned in the distress call.

A coast guard plane was dispatched to the scene with emergency food supplies as it was reported that the ship was out of food. The report to the coast guard also said the ship's engine room is flooded and the boat is adrift.

The coast guard cutter Kimball was enroute to the scene. The Kimball was unable to get to the scene because the pirate was adrift.

The pirate was due in Ketchikan with a new load of clams Sunday. Attempts by officials at the inoperable station to contact the pirate by telephone earlier Monday failed.
